

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Report by the Board of Trade laid before both Houses of Parliament under section 131 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883.

To the President of the Board of Trade.

MY LORD DUKE,

IN compliance with the above Section of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, I have the honour to submit the Second Annual Report on the various matters, judicial, administrative, and financial, within the said Act, since last year's Report.

IN last year's Report it was possible to do little more than describe the initial arrangements which had been made for bringing the Bankruptcy Act into operation, and to add such remarks as the Inspector General was able to make concerning the first few months of its working. The Act has now been in full operation for more than 18 months, and a more complete account of the arrangements made for working it, as well as further details concerning its operation, can therefore now be given.

See Par. Papers, C.-4072/84 and 256/84.

I.—GENERAL OPERATION OF THE ACT.

ON this subject I have to refer your Grace to the Report of the Inspector General in Bankruptcy, which forms the first annex to this Report. The subject is so fully dealt with in this Report, and in the tables contained in the Annexes IV. and V., which have also been prepared in the office of the Inspector General, that I do not think it necessary to do more than refer to them. Of all the information given by the Board of Trade to the public concerning the operation of the Bankruptcy Act it is the part which will probably be found the most interesting.

General operation of the Act. Inspector General's Report.

II.—JUDICIAL DECISIONS AFFECTING THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE ACT BY THE BOARD OF TRADE.

SO far as contentious business is concerned the Board of Trade, as the Department charged by the Legislature with the general administration of the Act, has mainly intervened in cases which from the bearing of the questions at issue upon the working of the Act, or from their intrinsic importance in other respects, have presented features of public interest. In several instances the action of the Board of Trade in these cases has been rendered necessary by the failure of assets in the particular estate, or by the action of Official Receivers as officers of the Board having been challenged in a court of law.

Principles on which Board of Trade have intervened.

The nature and results of these cases are stated in the Report of the Solicitor, Annex No. III.

III.—FINANCIAL RESULTS.

WHEN the Bill of 1883 was introduced, it was understood that Bankruptcy Administration was to pay for itself, and that no additional charge was to be laid on the public Exchequer in consequence of the Act. That this result has been achieved is shown by the following account, which has been prepared by the Treasury and will be laid before Parliament in pursuance of Section 130 of the Act.

Bankruptcy account shows a surplus.

ACCOUNT showing Receipts and Expenditure on account of Bankruptcy Proceedings during the Year ended 31st March 1885.

Particulars of Receipts.	Amount.	Particulars of Expenditure.	Amount.
a. Amount of Dividends or Interest arising from Stock transferred to National Debt Commissioners if Stock had not been cancelled, less Income Tax - - -	41,348 3 4	e. Salaries of officers, &c. (not including judges either of the Supreme Court or of County Courts) - -	82,248 8 6
b. Fees received in cash - - -	52,869 7 5	Remuneration to County Court Registrars in respect of Bankruptcy business - - -	25,504 0 0
c. Amount received by Inland Revenue for Bankruptcy Stamps - -	60,600 12 6	Incidental and travelling expenses -	9,352 15 9
d. Dividends on Funds invested under Section 76 of Bankruptcy Act, 1883 - - -	12,244 13 4	Rent, rates, and taxes - - -	9,111 4 4
		Stationery - - -	—
		Pensions and compensations - -	22,316 12 9
		Expenses of prosecutions for offences under Bankruptcy Acts - -	3,972 18 0
Total - - -	167,062 16 7	Total - - -	152,505 19 4

From the above account it will be seen that there is a surplus of over 14,000*l.* for the year. But it must be borne in mind that since the date of the above account some additional expense will have been incurred, and that the scale of fees has been revised as mentioned below.

The following are observations on certain of the items in the above account :—

(a.) This item arises in respect of funds belonging to the Bankruptcy Account under former Acts, which, though the stock in which they are invested has been cancelled, is treated as still existing for the purpose of showing the state of the account as between Bankruptcy Funds and the public Exchequer.

(b.) This item arises principally from fees received under Section 128, more particularly referred to below. It will on the one hand increase with the increasing business, but on the other hand will probably be diminished by the recent revision of the scale.

(c.) Where it is practicable the charges under the Act have been collected by means of stamps. In this matter the Board of Trade have to express their acknowledgments of the hearty co-operation of the Inland Revenue Commissioners.

(d.) The amount of money belonging to the Bankruptcy Estates Account and invested on the 1st July 1885 was 670,000*l.*

(e.) Includes salaries of officers of the Bankruptcy Department of the High Court of Justice and of officers of the Board of Trade employed on Bankruptcy business, but not paid from the vote for the Bankruptcy Department of that Board.

IV.—NEW SCALE OF FEES.

Alteration of per-centage on realisation.

The scale of fees originally adopted provided for a charge of 6 per cent. on all assets realised by Official Receivers. This gave rise to some misapprehension. It was suggested that the Board of Trade and its officers might have some interest in forcing realisations of estates, and the Lord Chancellor and the Treasury have consequently, on the recommendation of the Board of Trade, agreed to adopt a new scale of fees in which the charge on realisations is materially modified. By the new scale, which came into effect on 1st July, instead of there being a uniform charge of 6 per cent. on realisations, the charge of 6 per cent. is now made only on amounts under 500*l.* Above that amount the scale is as follows :—

Next	£ 500	-	-	-	-	5 per cent.
„	2,000	-	-	-	-	4 „
„	2,000	-	-	-	-	3 „
„	5,000	-	-	-	-	2 „
Above 10,000		-	-	-	-	1 „

The opportunity of this amendment was also made use of to revise the scale in some minor particulars.

A copy of the new scale of fees is appended. See Annex No. VII.

New scale of fees.

V.—PROPOSAL FOR NEW SCALE OF COSTS FOR SOLICITORS.

Complaints have been made that the existing scale of costs throws difficulties in the way of employing the solicitors for the debtor and for the petitioning creditor, and of paying them properly, although they might do work useful to the estate.

Employment and remuneration of solicitors.

The late Lord Chancellor was of opinion that the matter should be considered, and was in correspondence with the Incorporated Law Society of London, and with bodies representing solicitors in the provinces on this subject. Some delay has been occasioned by the recent change of Government, but it is hoped that it may be possible to deal with the subject at an early date.

The question is one of considerable difficulty and delicacy. On the one hand it is desirable not to discourage the employment of solicitors and accountants when their employment is really necessary or useful to the estate. On the other hand it is essential not to encourage their employment when their services are not required. To encourage their employment in such cases would be to re-introduce an evil which the recent Act was intended to prevent.

VI.—JUDICIAL ARRANGEMENTS.

These are, of course, independent of the Board of Trade, but it may be noticed that substantially little or no change has been made in them as they existed under the Act of 1869. The same number of County Courts have Bankruptcy jurisdiction in the country, and the same number of registrars continue to exercise Bankruptcy jurisdiction in the High Court, under the directions of a judge of the High Court.

County Courts.

The number of cases dealt with in the Courts has, for the time, greatly diminished, though it appears to be again on the increase.

In some respects the new Act has given more trouble to the Courts, whilst in other respects the work thrown on the official staff ought to have facilitated judicial work. Under these circumstances it is impossible at present to say precisely whether the judicial arrangements may require any and what modification in consequence of the new Act.

The late Lord Chancellor assigned Mr. Justice Cave to transact and dispose of matters relating to Bankruptcy in the High Court under Section 94 of the Act. This arrangement has worked satisfactorily, although there are occasional absences of the judge so assigned on circuit, when the business is done by another judge.

Assignment of judge to bankruptcy business.

By the Bankruptcy Appeals (County Courts) Act, 1884, the appeal from County Courts was made to lie to a divisional Court of the High Court of Justice instead of to the Court of Appeal, with a provision that the judge to whom Bankruptcy business is assigned must for the purposes of such appeal be a member of the divisional Court. The decision of such divisional Court can only be appealed from with the leave of that Court or of the Court of Appeal.

Appeals. 47 Vict. c. 9.

This change was made in order to relieve the Court of Appeal. As regards Bankruptcy, one beneficial effect of it is that the judge of the High Court to whom Bankruptcy business is assigned, and who is conversant with the ordinary Bankruptcy business of the High Court in London, must also be a member of the Court which hears appeals from Courts in the country.

VII.—OFFICIAL ARRANGEMENTS.

The following is a general statement of the official staff of the Board of Trade for Bankruptcy business. In its main features this staff will probably be found equal to the work thrown upon it, unless the number of cases should increase very largely. It may need development and additions in certain directions, but for some time the changes have been few, and little more than such as are found necessary in all Departments of the public service.

It will be observed that as the Act is in a measure experimental, an endeavour has been made, whenever possible, to make the appointments under it of a tentative and experimental character.

1. Official Receivers.

a.—In the High Court.

Official
Receiver
in High Court.

To perform the work of the Official Receiver in the High Court the following staff has been assigned.

In addition to their local duties the Chief Official Receiver and his principal officers have also, as will be seen below, been employed in assisting the Board of Trade generally.

	Salaries.
One Chief Official Receiver - - - -	2,000
Four Assistant Receivers at salaries varying from 500 l to 800 l . per. annum.	3,300
Allowance to Chief Official Receiver for Clerks - -	8,000
Taken over from old staff of Bankruptcy Court—
One Official Assignee - - - -	1,000
One Messenger - • - - - -	700
Clerks - - - - -	1,788
Official Solicitor - - - - -	1,200
Allowance to Official Solicitor for Clerks - -	1,100
Making on 31st March 1885 a total authorised expenditure of - - - - -	19,088 for the Chief Official Receiver's office in London.

Out of the persons amongst whom this sum is distributed, the four Assistant Receivers are at present holders of certificates from the Civil Service Commissioners, and of this staff these only, and certain of the officers taken over from the old Bankruptcy Court, are entitled to rank for pensions.

The appointment of Chief Official Receiver does not carry the right to pension, and is subject to revision at the termination of five years, for which period only the appointment was made.

b.—In the Country.

[1.] Salaried Official Receivers.

Official
Receivers
in the country.
Salaried.

The Board of Trade, with the sanction of the Treasury, have appointed salaried officers in the country at the following places, and with the following salaries and clerical allowances :

	Salary.	Clerical Allowance.	Total.
Manchester, with Salford - - -	1,200	} 1,200	2,900
Assistant Receiver at Manchester - -	500
Liverpool, with Birkenhead - - -	1,000	1,300	2,300
Birmingham, with Oldbury - - -	1,000	1,150	2,150
Bristol, with Bath, Frome, and Wells -	1,000	1,000	2,000
Newcastle - - - - -	1,000	1,000	2,000
Brighton, with Hastings, Lewes, and Tunbridge	600	845	1,445
London Suburbs - - - - -	800	850	1,650
Total - - - - -	7,100	7,345	14,445

The above salaried places carry with them the right to pension.

[2.] Non-Salaried Official Receivers.

The non-salaried Official Receivers are 58 in number. In the first instance it was intended that they should be paid entirely by fee of 4*l.* per case, with a commission varying from 5 per cent. to 7½ per cent. on the amounts realised by them for bankrupts' estates. This scale of payment was, however, found to be inadequate, and it was necessary to supplement their earnings under the scale for the year 1884 by an additional grant of 5,356*l.* 5*s.* 0*d.* The total payment for the 15 months ended 31st March 1885 was as follows:—

Fees and commissions	-	-	-
Supplementary grant	-	-	-
Total	-	-	-
	17,701	11	11
	5,356	5	0
	23,057	16	11

Official
Receivers
in the country.
Non-salaried.

The real annual charge in respect of the work done within the year will be somewhat greater than would appear from the above figures, as the fees and commissions accrue to the Official Receivers only as the cases mature and the work is done, and they are consequently not payable until some time after cases are commenced.

The whole question of the remuneration of the non-salaried Official Receivers is still under consideration.

That part of the staff of the Official Receivers which is paid by fees does not form any addition to the permanent Civil Service; and these appointments are terminable on notice, and do not carry any right to pension.

2. Office of Inspector General.

This office was created in order to assist the Board of Trade in performing various duties assigned to it under the Act. The principal duties at present assigned to it are the supervision of Official Receivers in the country; the supervision and control of Trustees; and the audit of Official Receivers' and Trustees' accounts. As stated in the former report presented to Parliament, the staff of the late Comptroller in Bankruptcy has to a great extent been transferred to this office, and the duties which remain to be performed under the Act of 1869 by the Comptroller in Bankruptcy has also been assigned to the office. The Inspector General's office now comprises the following staff:—

Office of Inspector General.

Inspector General	1,500
Two Inspectors	1,340
One Auditor	520
Three Senior Examiners	1,350
Six Junior	1,480
Four Clerks	900
Fourteen Lower Division Clerks	1,545
Total	8,635

The only new appointments made in this office besides that of the Inspector General are those filled by Lower Division Clerks, the higher offices being filled by transfers already alluded to and by promotions from the establishment of the Board of Trade.

3. Legal Expenses.

The Bankruptcy Act has thrown a large amount of additional work on the Solicitor to the Board of Trade. Some addition has, in consequence, been made to his staff and expenses. But this work and expenditure is mixed up with the work and expenditure arising from the new Patent Act, and with his ordinary work and expenditure, so that it is scarcely possible to analyse his expenditure in such a manner as to show, with accuracy, the amount due to each branch of business. The addition to his staff for Bankruptcy purposes will not, however, cost so much as 1,000*l.* a year, and his other expenses in connexion with Bankruptcy business will be from 750*l.* to 1,000*l.* per annum.

4. Money Arrangements : Bankruptcy Estates Account.

Bankruptcy
Estates Account.

To the Finance Department of the Board of Trade, in addition to the duties with which it was previously charged, have been assigned the arrangements necessary for the receipt and payment of moneys in connexion with the Bankruptcy Estates Account; and for the purposes of the duties remaining to be performed under previous Bankruptcy Acts, the Assistant Secretary of the Finance Department has been appointed Accountant in Bankruptcy.

On the passing of the Bankruptcy Act in August 1883 an account was at once opened at the Bank of England in accordance with the requirements of Section 74, in order that Trustees under the former Acts might be enabled at once to comply with the requirements of Section 162, by paying over the balances of moneys remaining in their hands to the Bankruptcy Estates Account.

The directors of the Bank of England have co-operated heartily with the Board of Trade, and although some difficulties arose, and some complaints were made at first, they were speedily surmounted, and the machinery for the receipt and payment of Bankruptcy moneys is working easily.

The complaints referred to mainly arose from alleged delays in issuing cheques for payment consequent on the periods which necessarily elapsed between the time when the remittances were made to the Bank of England and the date when the bank was able to credit the amount as cash realised. It is now generally understood that the Board of Trade is not authorised to issue cheques for the payment of claims until a sufficient credit is at the particular estate and the complaints of this nature have ceased.

Under the arrangements made with the Bank of England there has been received between the passing of the Act and the 31st day of March 1885 an aggregate amount of 1,487,184*l.* in 22,000 sums, and these again have in the books of the Board of Trade been subdivided and credited as distinct items to the 18,813 estate accounts to which they relate. In the same period 54,046 cheques have been drawn on the Bankruptcy Estates Account for 979,671*l.* Of this number, 5,274 representing 40,322*l.* were outstanding and remaining unpaid on the above-mentioned date. The average number of cheques drawn on the Bank of England and issued to the Trustees and Official Receivers as such ranges between 250 and 300 a day, but as many as 800 have been issued in one day.

To provide for an accurate account of each estate it has been necessary to open a ledger account wherever any cash transaction occurs, in addition to those which had been opened by the late Comptroller and Accountant in Bankruptcy (which were handed over to the Finance Department of the Board of Trade) and of these ledger accounts about 5,000 remained open on 31st March.

Investments.

An incidental advantage was gained through the economising of the balances, and from the surplus arising from this source and the ordinary transactions already described the sum of 600,000*l.* has been paid over to the Treasury for investment in accordance with the provisions of Section 76 of the Act. This sum has been further increased since the 31st March last to 670,000*l.*

The amount of 600,000*l.* has been invested in purchase of Consols to the extent of 493,540*l.* 10*s.* 7*d.*, and of 2½ per cent. stock to the extent of 114,230*l.* 15*s.* 9*d.*

Staff for
poses.

The increase of work in the Finance Department of the Board of Trade has been met by the appointment of 16 Lower Division Clerks, the employment of additional writers, the transfer of one clerk from the Customs establishment, of one from the old Bankruptcy establishment, and an additional allowance of 100*l.* per annum each to two of the superior officers of the Board of Trade establishment, at an estimated annual cost of about 3,000*l.*

The total annual expenditure authorised by the Treasury for the salaries and allowances of the establishment of the Board of Trade for the administration of Bankruptcy work to 31st March last is approximately as follows, viz. :—

Summary of Board of Trade expenditure.

	Establishment.	Clerical Allowances.	Total.
Chief Official Receiver's Department -	11,088	8,000	19,088
Other salaried Official Receivers - -	7,100	7,345	14,445
Non-salaried Official Receivers - -	—	—	23,058
Inspector General's Office - - -	8,635	—	8,635
Solicitor's Department, Board of Trade (about)	—	—	1,000
Finance Department, Board of Trade (about)	—	—	3,000
Contingencies, inclusive of printing and stationery (actual expenditure).	—	—	7,832
Law charges (actual expenditure) - -	—	—	1,144
Rents of rooms „ - - -	—	—	1,318
Total - - - -	-	£	79,520

The actual charge, however, will be somewhat less as the costs did not reach the above figures at the outset, the appointments having been made only as the necessities arose.

These expenses have been met by fees and charges, and by the interest of invested moneys, as shown in the general account of the financial result of the Act given above, page 4.

5. Office Accommodation.

The question of office accommodation has been and is a very serious one. The Chief Official Receiver has been temporarily accommodated in hired offices in Carey Street, but it is proposed to provide for the permanent accommodation of his staff, as well as of the Registrars of the High Court, by building on the vacant ground adjoining the High Courts of Justice at the expense of Bankruptcy funds under the provisions of a Bill which is now before Parliament.

Office accommodation.

The accommodation or want of accommodation for the staff at Whitehall is a still greater difficulty, and no steps have yet been taken for its removal. The office of the Inspector General, and of the greater part of his staff, is in Great George Street, but the rooms are crowded, ill-arranged, and ill-ventilated. Other rooms have been procured for part of his staff in Victoria Street, but this separates the audit branch of the office into two parts and places, and causes great inconvenience. A further difficulty is the distance of his office from the office of the Board of Trade in Whitehall Gardens, where the financial work and the general supervision of the Bankruptcy business of the Board is conducted. Officers whose time is valuable have to lose time in passing to and fro, and loss of time is the least part of the mischief. Under present circumstances there appears to be little prospect of remedying this evil.

VIII.—CONSULTATIONS WITH AND INSTRUCTIONS TO OFFICIAL RECEIVERS.

It is obvious that in a matter of administration extending over the whole country, worked by different judges and different officers in different places and under different circumstances, one of the great desiderata is to promote harmonious, if not uniform, action.

Consultations with Official Receivers.

With this purpose in view the local officers of the Board of Trade were summoned to consult with the President and the principal officers of that Department in London on the working of the Act. The following officers met accordingly at the Board of Trade in November, December, and January :—

1. Salaried Official Receivers.
2. Official Receivers in northern districts.
3. Official Receivers in southern and western districts.

Preparation of Instructions.

At these meetings satisfactory communications were made as to the general working of the Act. In consequence of the information then obtained a Committee was appointed, consisting of the salaried Official Receivers and the principal officers of the Board of Trade connected with Bankruptcy, to draw up a code of instructions to Official Receivers, the Chief Official Receiver (Mr. Harding) being the Chairman of the Committee. Great progress has since been made with the work. A complete draft by the Chief Official Receiver has been prepared and considered by a sub-committee, and is now under consideration by the Committee.

Your Grace's special attention is asked to these draft instructions. The long practical experience of the Chief Official Receiver in matters of Bankruptcy, added to his experience of the working of the new Act in the large and important Bankruptcy business of the High Court, has given him a peculiar aptitude for the preparation of these instructions, and I am anxious to bear witness to the remarkable skill and patience with which in the midst of the administration of a new and laborious department he has performed this duty. It has been a very heavy task, but the results will be proportionately valuable, and the instructions when finally revised with the help of the Committee will, it is to be hoped, have a great effect in facilitating and harmonizing the administration of the new law.

IX.—RULES FOR THE GUIDANCE OF TRUSTEES.

A notice of the practice to be followed by Trustees in their relations to the Board of Trade has also been prepared by the Inspector General in concert with the other officers of the Department, and a copy is now given to every Trustee when he enters on his duties.

This notice will probably save both Trustees and the Department much trouble in the audit of accounts, and in their other business relations with the Board of Trade.

X.—BANKRUPTCIES, LIQUIDATIONS, AND COMPOSITIONS UNDER THE ACT OF 1869.

Proceedings
under former Act still

A considerable number of cases were pending at the time the new Act came into operation, and these have to be carried to completion under the Act of 1869. The particulars of these cases for the year 1884, heretofore given by the Comptroller in Bankruptcy in his annual reports, will be found in the report by the Inspector General, who now holds the office of Comptroller in addition to that of Inspector General. In the performance of this work and in the preparation of this report he has been efficiently assisted by Mr. Francis Wreford, who was formerly in the Comptroller's office, and who is now one of the Inspectors in the office of the Inspector General. This report is contained in Annex No. II. to this Report.

XI.—GETTING IN OUTSTANDING ASSETS UNDER SECTION 162 OF ACT OF 1883.

Getting in assets under former Acts.
See Parliamentary
Paper
C.-4072,

The steps taken to carry out the provisions of Section 162 of the Bankruptcy Act, with reference to the payment of unclaimed dividends and undistributed funds into the Bankruptcy Estates Account, were explained in some detail in the report issued in June of last year. The influx of funds from Trustees who voluntarily recognise their liabilities under the provisions of the Section has largely diminished, and with a view of bringing pressure to bear on Trustees who have failed to make returns, lists of cases and names of Trustees have been obtained from the Court files of the London Bankruptcy Court and of the principal County Courts for a period of five years. So far as the pressure of work under the new Act and the limited staff at disposal have permitted, the task of requiring Trustees whose names have been thus ascertained to furnish returns has been proceeded with. This work is still in progress, and steps are being taken to utilise the local knowledge of Official Receivers in some of the larger centres for the purpose.

It is to be observed, however, as indicating the character of a considerable class of Trustees under the Act of 1869, that a large number of circulars issued to Trustees whose names appear in the Court lists have been returned through the Dead Letter Office. Also in cases where the Board of Trade have taken steps towards a more searching investigation and audit of accounts it has in several instances been found difficult to effect service of the necessary legal notices upon the Trustees concerned.

Complaints continue to reach the Department from creditors as to the wasteful administration of estates in liquidation under the Act of 1869, and accounts are from time to time called for; but while the action of the Department is found in many instances to expedite the distribution of an estate, the Trustee, through the proxy system, or by the friendly co-operation of the Committee of Inspection, is generally able to support by allocators the excessive charges which are the principal source of complaint by creditors.

The work under Section 162 in relation to proceedings under the new Act is of a very limited character. In the great majority of cases the proceeds of the estates are paid into the Bankruptcy Estates Account, and as all dividends are paid by cheque on the Bank of England, drawn in favour of the person entitled, all unclaimed amounts remain as a matter of course in the Bankruptcy Estates Account, the cheques being cancelled if not claimed within six months. Where a local bank is sanctioned under Section 74 (4) of the Act of 1883 the Trustee is required after every dividend to submit dividend lists and vouchers, and to pay in any dividend which has been unclaimed for six months. Upon the final audit of his account any balance is transferred from the local bank to the Bankruptcy Estates Account.

In continuation of the figures published in the last report, I have to state that the amounts paid into the Bankruptcy Estates Account under Section 162, from the passing of the Act until the 31st March 1885, were as follows:—

Funds in the hands of Trustees undistributed for two years and upwards, and dividends unclaimed for six months and upwards - - - - -	228,446	12	2
Repayments on account of the same - - - - -	41,169	8	2
Thus leaving outstanding a balance of - - - - -	187,277	4	0

XII.—ADMINISTRATION ORDERS UNDER SECTION 122.

Section 122 enables the Court to make an order for the administration and distribution of the estate or earnings of any debtor who is unable to pay forthwith a County Court judgment debt, and whose whole indebtedness amounts to a sum not exceeding 50*l*. Dealings with small debtors.

The Board of Trade are not charged with any administrative functions under this Section; which is entirely worked by the County Court Judges and Registrars.

The annexed Table shows the total number of administration cases, the total number of creditors, the total amount of debts scheduled, and the amount paid into Court. These figures have been furnished by the Superintendent of the County Courts Department of the Treasury, who is preparing a more detailed table for the Annual Return of County Court plaintiffs. It is hoped in future to give some tables showing the actual pecuniary result to creditors under Administration Orders.

The priority given by subsection 8 of Section 122 to the costs of the plaintiff in the action, and to the fee for costs of administration, viz., 2*s*. in the £, makes it probable that during the past year only a small portion of the total amount paid into Court has been distributed among the creditors.

Suggestions have been made for some re-arrangement of the fees by which a portion might be deferred to a later period of the administration. Distribution among creditors would thus commence at an earlier date.

Another suggestion is that an officer of the Court should be specially charged with the superintendence of the administration after the order has been made.

XIII.—CONCLUDING REMARKS.

It would still be premature to come to any decided conclusion concerning the general results of the Act, or concerning its effect on the trade of the country and on commercial morality. Some time must elapse before the administration of the Act can be perfected, and much more before its full effect can be judged of. But so far as the facts stated in the above Report and in that of the Inspector General make it possible to form an opinion, there appears to be no reason to think that the Act will disappoint the hopes of its promoters.

ANNEX No. I.

Report by the Inspector General in Bankruptcy on the general working of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, for the year ending 31st December 1884.

To the Secretary of the Board of Trade.

SIR,

IN conformity with your directions I have the honour to submit the following Report on the administration of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, for the year ending 31st December last.

TORY.

In my Report of 3rd June 1884 I attempted to contrast the working of the new Act with that of the Act of 1869 and to furnish some statistics showing the results then attained. As these statistics, however, were based upon an actual working experience of only three months, and as the conclusions drawn were, in many cases, rather of the nature of probable than of actual estimates, it has been thought desirable to combine the whole of the statistics of the past year, so that while the ground travelled over in the present report is to some extent identical with that covered by the last, the statistics now furnished rest upon a wider basis and the conclusions arrived at are therefore founded upon data of a more complete and trustworthy character.

It will be found that the further experience thus gained has furnished no reason for substantially modifying the opinions previously expressed, but has, on the contrary, confirmed them. On the other hand, it must be remembered that in some respects the statistics yet collected are still imperfect and a larger experience must be gained before thoroughly trustworthy conclusions can be drawn. In regard, for example, to the costs of administration of estates administered by non-official trustees, the statistics of the year only include particulars of 13 estates, being less than two per cent. of the total number of estates administered during the year by such trustees. This is altogether too small a proportion to furnish a satisfactory basis for general conclusions. Even in regard to those matters in respect of which the statistics are more complete some caution must be exercised in drawing inferences as to the permanent working of a new system of administration. The experience of a single year is too limited to furnish materials for predicting the ultimate effects of a measure complicated in its details, and involving changes in the principles of bankruptcy administration of wider scope probably than those which have characterised any preceding Bankruptcy Acts during the present century. Even the Act of 1869, which in its later working produced for itself universal condemnation, presented in its earlier years some results of a greatly beneficial character. The restraints which it imposed on some forms of maladministration which had been developed under its predecessors were effectual in their operation until a wider experience proved that the Act contained within itself the very means by which these restraints could be entirely evaded, and only as these facilities for evasion became more widely known and more generally resorted to did the real tendency of the Act become apparent.

Every measure based upon large changes of administrative detail is more or less liable to a similar experience. The Act of 1883 has, indeed, this advantage over its predecessor, that whereas in the latter case there was no adequate organisation for enforcing its provisions or remedying the defects which experience developed, the former itself supplies the want by placing its administration under the supervision, and to some extent under the control, of one of the administrative departments of the State and of a minister responsible to Parliament. How far this control and responsibility will secure efficient results can, however, only be determined by actual experience. Moreover, the control thus exercised is strictly limited in its character. The ultimate interpretation of the Act and a large discretion in its administration rests with the Courts of Law; and much must also depend on vigorous and efficient action on the part of independent bodies, such as committees of inspection and meetings of creditors.

The attitude of the public towards any system of bankruptcy administration is also an important factor in determining its success or otherwise, and public opinion on such a subject is necessarily of slow growth. It is not always those who suffer most directly by a bad bankruptcy law who are prepared most heartily to welcome and promote the operation of a new measure. Many members of this class doubtless feel themselves incapable of forming an independent opinion upon the merits or demerits of an Act highly technical in its character, and their reluctance to do so has been greatly aggravated by the failure of previous measures in fulfilling the expectations which they had excited. Although, therefore, no surer test will probably be found to determine the ultimate judgment of public opinion upon the subject than the actual experience of this class of persons, their first views are liable to be influenced by external causes, and these views may affect their attitude to the measure in its early years in a manner altogether contrary to that which subsequent experience may dictate. For example, it cannot be disputed that in the beginning of 1884, large numbers of the trading classes were influenced in their action in regard to the insolvencies in which they were interested, not by any actual experience of their own, but by fears and suspicions that the procedure introduced by the Act was more expensive than that of former Acts, or of private liquidations. The result of these influences was that during the early months of last year a considerable number of private arrangements between debtors and their creditors did undoubtedly take place. Any estimate, therefore, of the probable number of bankruptcies under the Act of 1883 founded upon the actual number of Receiving Orders made during the early months of last year would thus have been inaccurate as shown by subsequent experience. For example, the number of Receiving Orders for the first six months of 1884 was 1,506, for the second six months 1,789; while for the six months ending 30th June 1885 the number is 2,232. This does not necessarily imply that insolvency is on the increase, but is probably rather an evidence that the prejudices which existed against the Act shortly after it came into operation are now subsiding under the influence of a more thorough acquaintance with its real character and effects.

It will thus be seen that in forming conclusions as to the probable permanent effects of the Bankruptcy Act of 1883, it is necessary to observe caution in the use of the available statistics.

The total number of Orders for the winding up of insolvent estates made during the year 1884 was 3,317, or (deducting 22 Administration Orders made under Section 125 for the winding up of estates of deceased debtors, a class of estates not hitherto dealt with under the Bankruptcy Acts, and 35 Receiving Orders which were rescinded before being acted upon) the number was 3,260. But to this should be added, in order to make the record of the year complete, the proceedings under the Act of 1869 initiated during 1883, but which culminated either in Bankruptcy or in resolutions for Liquidation or Composition during 1884. The total number of these proceedings was 910, thus giving a total of 4,170 estates wound up under both Acts during the year, as shown in the following table, which is also printed in the Annex No. VI. :—

Decrease in numbers.

On comparing this number of 4,170 with the number of proceedings during previous years it will be found that it represents less than one half of the total for 1883 which in point of numbers was the lowest of the last 10 years, and less than one third of the total number for 1879 which was the highest during the same period. It more nearly approximates to the number for 1870, the first year after the passing of the Act of 1869, when the total number of cases was 5,002.

Increase in importance.

As regards the character of the cases as judged by the average amount of liabilities and assets, it will be found that the proceedings under the new Act represent a somewhat larger average class of estates than those under the old. Thus it appears from the table that the total liabilities on 8,555 cases during the last year of the 1869 Act amounted to 21,268,151*l.*, being an average of 2,486*l.* per case, against 3,260 cases with 10,049,399*l.* liabilities in the first year of the new Act, being an average of 3,082*l.* per case. In the same way the assets under the old Act averaged 700*l.* per case against 956*l.* under the new. These figures, however, do not quite adequately represent the real difference between the two classes of cases, for while in both the estimates are almost entirely the estimates of debtors themselves, as shown in their statements of affairs, those statements under the Act of 1869 were in the great majority of cases less carefully prepared than the corresponding statements under the Act of 1883, which were framed with the knowledge that they must undergo investigation and scrutiny by the Official Receiver before being presented to the creditors. It thus happens that under the former Act the debtor's estimate of his liabilities was generally under stated, while his estimate of his assets was generally exaggerated to a considerably larger degree than is the case under the Act of 1883.

From these figures it appears—

- (1.) That there has been a great diminution in the number of insolvencies wound up under the provisions of the Bankruptcy Law.

(2.) That the average size of the estates is larger.

Causes of decrease.

How far these results are to be traced directly to the operation of the Act of 1883 must, of course, be a matter of opinion and inference rather than of statistical demonstration, but seeing that they are in the direction contemplated by the promoters of the Act, and that the repeal of the Act of 1869 was mainly due to results of an opposite character, it is not unreasonable to assume that they are to a considerable extent the natural effect of the changes in the law.

The objects of the new Act as stated on the occasion of its introduction to Parliament* were: "First, the honest administration of Bankrupt Estates with a view " to the fair and speedy distribution of the assets to the creditors whose property " they are," and, "Second, to do something to improve the general tone of commercial " morality, to promote honest trading, and to lessen the number of failures."

The first of these objects and the extent to which it has been accomplished will be dealt with in a subsequent part of this Report, but the facts stated above and a perusal of the accompanying tables will show that in so far as it was the object of Parliament to diminish the number of failures the results obtained have been in a satisfactory direction.

It is probable, however, that other circumstances may have concurred in producing these results. Although the total number of failures during the year 1884 is less by more than one half than the corresponding number in 1883, yet it should be remembered that the latter year was itself one of a series of constantly decreasing numbers extending from the year 1879, when the figures relating to insolvency reached their maximum, and it is not improbable that even apart from the operation of the new Act some further diminution would have been shown in the statistics of the past year. The chief cause of this steady reduction is no doubt to be found in the fact that since the great financial collapses of 1878-1879 general credit has been much restricted, and speculation has declined.

It has, however, been suggested that the Bankruptcy returns of the past year do not disclose the actual condition of insolvency throughout the country, and this suggestion appears to be based upon three allegations, viz.: First, that there is a great and long continued depression in trade; Second, that there has been a large increase in the number of private arrangements; and, Third, that cases exist which neither come into Court nor are settled by private arrangement. These last are cases in which the debtor does not bring the case into Court because he has not the same facilities as he formerly had for getting whitewashed, and in which the creditor does not bring the case into Court because there is no estate to divide. The above allegations raise some questions of considerable importance, both from a statistical point of view and as bearing upon the actual condition of the trading interests of the kingdom, and it is therefore perhaps desirable in the first complete year's report upon the new Bankruptcy Act to examine these questions somewhat more fully than their relative importance in regard to the actual administration of the Act would itself require.

NESS OF
RETURNS.

In connexion with the first of these allegations it is argued that it is impossible to suppose that there has been any substantial diminution in the insolvency of the country, because the long continued depression in trade has not, during the past year, shown any material symptoms of abatement. This argument, however, is based upon the assumption that depression in trade is necessarily associated with failures in business, but this assumption does not appear to be well founded. Failures may be due to many causes, but the chief cause is not a decrease in the volume of business so much as a want of caution in its conduct. Such a want of caution is clearly exhibited when traders give a large amount of credit recklessly, or when they knowingly carry on their business at a loss, and there is good reason for believing that most failures are due to one or other of these causes. But recklessness in giving credit may, and generally does, prevail during periods marked by large expansion of business rather than by its contraction. On the other hand, when a trading community has prominently enforced upon its attention either as a result of experience or of legislation the necessity for caution in conducting its business, the probability is that while failures are diminished one of the very results of this caution will be the contraction of business, a consequent decrease in the employment of labour, and general depression. It is true that failures are likewise brought about to a considerable extent by a sudden collapse in a particular industry, and this fact has been illustrated during the past year by the number of large failures among the importers of foreign produce, owing to the heavy fall in prices which has characterised the business in certain staple articles during the year. But with one or two exceptions of this character which have not contributed materially to augment the number of bankruptcies (although they have undoubtedly helped to swell their average magnitude), there has been no sudden collapse in the trade of the country during the past year. It may, therefore, fairly be concluded that the diminution in the number of failures while it by no means indicates a condition of increased prosperity in trade is the natural result of a greater development of caution both in giving and in taking credit, and of a diminution in the tendency to continue trading on conditions which necessarily entail a loss upon the trader. The tendency of the Bankruptcy Act has unquestionably been to foster these results, which, whether or not they lead to a return of active business prosperity in the future, are essential conditions if any such return of prosperity is to be based upon a sound foundation.

PRIVATE
MENTS.

But it has also been alleged as a reason for doubting whether the bankruptcy returns for the past year accurately disclose the condition of insolvency throughout the country that there has been a largely increased amount of such insolvency which has not come within the operation of the Bankruptcy Act at all. This insolvency has, it is alleged, been dealt with by means of private deeds of arrangement betwixt debtors and their creditors, and, consequently, the operation of the new Act in diminishing the number of cases is assumed to be merely in the nature of a transfer from official to non-official insolvency. In the absence of any trustworthy records it is impossible to ascertain the precise number or character of these arrangements, but it should be borne in mind that a large amount of insolvency has always been annually arranged without resorting to the aid of the Bankruptcy Law. While, however, this is undeniable, there is no evidence to show that private arrangements have materially increased in number since the passing of the new Act, and in the opinion of many of the special organs of public opinion in particular trades (including the grocery and provision trade, which furnishes the largest proportion of failures) the assumption is expressly negatived. It is not improbable, as already stated, that in the early part of 1884 there was a considerable resort to these methods, and it would appear that even more lately numerous attempts have been made to prevent estates coming under the operation of the Bankruptcy Act, but there is evidence to show that the difficulties attending these attempts have greatly increased as the actual working and results of the Bankruptcy Act came to be more widely and more accurately known. The consequence has been that while a vast number of such attempts have been made, in a large proportion of cases they have proved abortive, and bankruptcy has ensued.

Objections to arrangements now

Even if it were otherwise there would probably be no reason to regret the operation of the Act in this respect. So long as a private arrangement could be forced upon a dissenting minority of creditors by the votes of the majority or by the threats of debtors themselves such arrangements were open to the most serious objection, and tended greatly to paralyse and undermine the wholesome influence of the soundest Bankruptcy laws; but since a majority can no longer bind a minority, and such arrangements to be effectual must (with the exception hereafter noticed) be practically supported by every creditor, the chief grounds of objection to them are undoubtedly removed. It is well to remember that the bankruptcy laws were, as a matter of fact, originally introduced for the purpose of providing for "the relief of insolvent debtors" who were unable otherwise to arrange their affairs, and where the necessary relief can be obtained by mutual arrangement there seems to be no reason why the aid of these laws should not be dispensed with. What appears to be essential in regard to these arrangements and what has been substantially secured by the Bankruptcy Act of 1883 is that no creditor should be compelled to accept any arrangement or composition outside of the provisions of the Act without his own consent.

Hardship on
less than 50%.

An exception to this rule does, however, undoubtedly exist in the case of creditors under 50%. It is true that without their own consent they are not bound by any arrangements which the debtor may enter into with his creditors, but as, on the other hand, the amount of their debt is insufficient to give them, as individual creditors, the right to present a Bankruptcy petition, which is enjoyed by every creditor of 50% and upwards, they are placed in the unfortunate position of either having to fall in with such arrangement or to run the risk of losing everything. This is not a new provision, the same rule having prevailed under previous Acts, but many complaints have been received in regard to it during the past year, and it is a question for consideration whether steps should not be taken to amend the Act in this respect on the first suitable opportunity.

Increase in
paid by debtors
under private arrangements.

While, however, there is no evidence to show that there has been any large general increase in the number of private arrangements, there is every reason, on the other hand, to believe that the general character of those which have been carried out has greatly improved so far as regards the pecuniary results to the creditors concerned. Numerous instances have come under notice where debtors have paid private Compositions of 10s., 15s., and 20s. in the £ in order to escape the inconveniences of Bankruptcy. One debtor within the jurisdiction of the Salisbury Court called his creditors together privately and offered them a Composition of 1s. in the £, but was ultimately induced to make an arrangement for the payment of his debts in full. Many instances of a similar character though less marked in degree have been brought to the notice of the Department.

It may, perhaps, be doubted whether in all of these cases the conduct of the debtor has been of a satisfactory character, and it may even be surmised that in some of them the largeness of the offers made indicates a desire to escape the criminal consequences of various breaches of the Debtors' Act which might have resulted if the proceedings had been conducted under the Bankruptcy Act. Indeed, it cannot be doubted that that Act has thus placed a very considerable lever in the hands of creditors for bringing pressure to bear upon their debtors where the latter have any special reasons for avoiding Bankruptcy proceedings, and it may therefore fairly be assumed that the tendency of the Act in this respect will ultimately prove to be in the direction of a diminution of such arrangements and an increase in the value of the dividends and Compositions in those which remain. Such a result would be in accordance with the spirit of the Bankruptcy Act, by securing that whether an estate is administered within its provisions or outside of them, a debtor who has been guilty of misconduct shall not obtain his release unless he can find the means of paying a larger proportionate dividend to his creditors than he might otherwise be called upon to do.

Effect as regards debtor's conduct.

Before leaving this subject it may be well to refer to an objection to which private deeds of arrangement are obnoxious, and in regard to which serious complaints have been received from many representative sections of the mercantile community, including the Associated Chambers of Commerce and the Association of Trade Protection Societies for the United Kingdom. It is alleged that these arrangements, which are entered into without registration or public notice of any kind, act as a fraud upon other creditors by enabling a debtor secretly to arrange for the carrying on of his business when he is in an insolvent position, and thereby to obtain credit under circumstances in which he would not be able to obtain it if the facts and circumstances were known, as in the case of Bankruptcy. Although regarded as to its effect upon the actual administration of the Bankruptcy Act, this question is only of secondary interest, it is no doubt an important matter for the trading community, and it is not, therefore, surprising to find that steps have been taken by some of the bodies referred to for the purpose of obtaining a system of registration of all deeds of arrangement, similar to that which prevails in regard to the registration of bills of sale. It is also a matter for consideration whether the period within which preferences (effected by means of private deeds in favour of assenting creditors) can be set aside, and which under the present Act has been reduced to three months, might not with advantage be restored to its former limit of six months.

Registration.

In the following table it has been attempted to indicate roughly the comparative effect of insolvency in successive years for a given period, so far as conclusions can be drawn from Bankruptcy statistics. Care must, however, be exercised in drawing conclusions from this table, seeing that it is not entirely founded upon actual results but partly upon estimates only. Another drawback also arises from the circumstance that in many cases the same debt is proved upon different estates, and the total liabilities are thus fictitiously increased to the extent of such repetition. In the case of a bill of exchange, for example, there may be two or more parties, all bankrupt, and all liable for the full amount of the bill, and thus the same debt would appear as a liability on several estates. Before the figures could be accepted, therefore, as entirely accurate or complete the amount of these double proofs would require to be eliminated, but there is, unfortunately, no means at present of doing so or of determining what influence this fact exercises upon the actual statistics.

ESTIMATED ANNUAL LOSS TO CREDITORS.

While, therefore, there are sufficient elements of uncertainty to indicate that the table must be used with caution in drawing conclusions as to the absolute amount of loss sustained by creditors, it may probably be useful as affording some materials for a comparative estimate of the effect of insolvency on the condition of trade throughout the country during the various years to which it relates.

ADMINISTRATION OF BANKRUPTCY ACT.

With regard to the manner in which the administration of the Bankruptcy Act has itself been conducted during the first year of its operation, it might be sufficient to refer to the series of tables contained in Annex IV., which have been prepared with the view of showing the working of the Act as completely as possible. It may perhaps, however, assist in the perusal of these tables if attention is called to some of the more salient features contained in them.

Debtors' and creditors' petitions.

It appears from Table I. that the total number of receiving orders made on debtors' petitions was 2,316, while the total made on creditors' petitions was 961. It does not appear from these figures that there is any foundation for the suggestion which has sometimes been made that honest debtors avoid the Bankruptcy Court as far as possible.

Acts of bankruptcy. Bankruptcy notice.

It will be observed from Tables I. and II. that the act of bankruptcy on which much the largest number of creditors' petitions have resulted in Receiving Orders is a "Bankruptcy notice," although at the same time the number of these notices issued is largely in excess of the number of Receiving Orders made, more especially in London. Thus it appears that while 3,022 such notices were issued in the High Court, only 207 of these, or rather less than 7 per cent., actually resulted in Receiving Orders. In the country the number was about 16 per cent. No doubt in some of these cases Bankruptcy notices led indirectly to the presentation of debtors' petitions; but even after making full allowance for this consideration, it is evident that only a very small proportion of such notices end in Receiving Orders. It should be noted, as bearing upon this question, that many of these Bankruptcy notices have been presented in succession against the same person, and paid off just as they were about to ripen into further action. It would appear from this either that solvent debtors are largely in the habit of taking advantage of the forms of law to resist payment of their debts until actually compelled to do so by the fear of bankruptcy, or that insolvent debtors are in the habit of exhausting their resources before allowing themselves to be made bankrupt. Probably both explanations may be correct. In connexion with this point, it should be noted, as aggravating the inconveniences to which creditors are thus exposed, that no Bankruptcy notice can now be issued without final judgment being first obtained against the debtor, thereby differing from the corresponding procedure under the Act of 1869, where a debtor's summons could be issued without judgment, and the onus of setting up a substantial defence was thereby thrown upon the debtor. Complaints have been received in regard to the alleged unnecessary trouble and expense caused to creditors by this change in the law, it being maintained that while it is perfectly reasonable to afford to a debtor the amplest facilities for resisting a claim in regard to which he is able to submit a substantial prima facie defence it is an unnecessary hardship upon creditors whose claims are not disputed, if they are exposed to the delay and cost of obtaining judgment against a debtor who is, in fact, insolvent. On the other hand, it is alleged that the procedure for obtaining judgment in such cases has been largely simplified under the Judicature Acts.

In 124 cases Receiving Orders were made upon a notice of "suspension of payment." This is a new act of bankruptcy; but the section has been strictly interpreted by the courts of law, which have held that a statement by a debtor that "he was unable to pay the debts of his firm," accompanied by an offer of 4s. in the £, was not a formal notice of suspension or intention to suspend payment so as to bring it within the Act. Since this decision it has frequently happened that debtors have practically suspended payment, and private meetings of their creditors have even been called for the purpose of discussing their affairs and arranging some mode of procedure in order to "avoid" the commission of an act of bankruptcy. It is uncertain (in view of the decision above referred to) how such conduct may be dealt with by the courts, but it appears difficult to resist the conclusion that it either falls within the provisions of the section, or is a distinct evasion of those provisions. It is a matter for consideration whether at some future period this act of bankruptcy should not receive a clearer definition.

Notice of suspension of payment.

It may also be noted that there are no fewer than 121 receiving orders made upon "a declaration of inability to pay debts." As all of these receiving orders have been made on creditors' petitions, while the declaration of inability was made by the debtor, it is evident that the debtor was a party to the presentation of such petitions against himself, instead of himself presenting a petition.

Declaration of inability.

The same tendency is also apparent in another practice which has been resorted to in many cases, where, after a creditor's petition has been presented and considerable costs incurred thereunder, the debtor has himself presented a petition, on which a Receiving Order has been made. In some cases the courts have made orders for the payment of both sets of costs out of the estate, thus exposing the latter to the expense both of a successful and of an unsuccessful petition. It is a matter for consideration how far these abuses, which appear to be of a growing character, ought to be dealt with by an amendment of the rules relating to such questions.

Unnecessary costs.

Table III. exhibits the proportion of estates wound up under Summary Orders by Official Receivers as distinguished from those wound up non-officially. From this it appears that about two thirds of the entire number of cases were wound up under the summary clauses. As, however, these cases include as a rule only estates in which the assets are worth 300*l.* or less, there is no doubt that the amount to be realised and distributed by independent trustees or by debtors themselves under Composition schemes is very much larger than the amount realised and distributed by Official Receivers. In fact it should be borne in mind that it is comparatively speaking the residuum only of Bankruptcy property which is administered by the latter, and this forms an important consideration when the comparative cost and efficiency of the two methods of realisation are considered.

Proportion of summary cases.

With regard to the nature of the proceedings adopted for winding up debtors' estates, it appears from Table IV. that the total number of cases in which Compositions were accepted and approved without an adjudication in Bankruptcy was 269, and the total number of Schemes of Arrangement adopted without adjudication was 56. It thus appears that only about 10 per cent. of all the cases under the new Act were wound up without adjudication in Bankruptcy. These results present a remarkable contrast to those under the Act of 1869, as will appear more clearly from the

The accompanying statement, extracted from the tables in Annex No. IV., also shows that the Compositions and Schemes of Arrangement under the present Act are of a much larger and more important class than those wound up under the previous Act, for while the average value of the estates in the case of Compositions under the Act of 1869 as shown in the returns for the year 1883 was 337*l.*, and in the case of Liquidations 992*l.*, the average value in 1884 under the Act of 1883 was 2,281*l.* and 5,934*l.* respectively.

Increase in amount of compositions paid.

Further, it appears from Table V. that so far as Compositions were concerned, the results to creditors are of a much more favourable character under the new Act. For example, the proportion of Compositions above 10*s.* in the £ was shown in the interim report presented last year to amount under the Act of 1869 to only 3 per cent. of the total number, whereas the proportion of such Compositions under the new Act is 9 per cent. in the High Court, and 23 per cent. in the country. Although the percentage in the High Court is smaller than in the country, it should be noted that the estates are of a larger character. It also appears, as shown in the same report, that under the Act of 1869 no less than 23 per cent. of the total number of Compositions did not exceed 1s. in the £, whereas during the whole of the year 1884 only four Compositions have been approved at so small an amount. The cause of this remarkable contrast is no doubt to be found in the fact that a Composition or Liquidation Arrangement no longer protects the debtor from a public Examination as to his affairs, as under the old Act, and that no Liquidation or Composition can now be approved without the sanction of the Court, after a review of the debtor's conduct. The tendency of the new Act is thus to discourage any arrangement by which the debtor obtains his discharge when he has been guilty of misconduct, and, although the practice has not been uniform, many cases have occurred during the past year where the Courts have in the exercise of the discretion conferred on them by the Act refused upon this ground to confirm Compositions which appeared from a mere pecuniary point of view to be in the interests of the creditors, and it has been found that in so doing they have really been acting in the interest of creditors. As an illustration, a case which occurred during the year in the Liverpool Court may be referred to. In this case a Composition of 5s. in the £ was proposed and carried by 48 creditors out of a total number of 50. The statement of affairs showed liabilities of 2,146l. and assets 600l. There was no apparent probability that so much as 5s. in the £ would be realised under an adjudication, but the Official Receiver opposed the scheme on the ground that the debtor knew himself to be insolvent for four years before his failure, and that he had continued to incur liabilities and to trade continuously at a loss. The debtor's books, moreover, were imperfectly kept, and did not disclose all his transactions. The Court therefore refused to sanction the Composition. On the winding up of the estate in Bankruptcy it was then discovered that further assets than those disclosed in the debtor's statement were available, and dividends amounting to 7s. 2d. in the £ have since been paid to the creditors. Many cases of a similar kind have been recorded during the year, and there is good reason for believing that, although there may be some instances to the contrary, yet, taken as a whole, the action of the Courts where they have refused to confirm a debtor's proposal has been favourable to the creditors from a pecuniary point of view. Even were it otherwise, it should be borne in mind that although the creditors may appear to suffer in a particular case, yet any policy which has a tendency to discourage commercial irregularities is certain to confer upon creditors generally far greater benefits than those which they might have derived in particular cases had they been permitted to condone the debtor's misconduct for a pecuniary consideration.

Action of the Courts in approving compositions, &c.

The schemes of arrangement carried out during the year have been too few in character to afford a trustworthy basis for any general conclusions respecting them. In some cases they have unquestionably been for the advantage of creditors, either by the withdrawal of the claims of some family creditors for the benefit of the rest, or by some other special arrangement whereby the creditors received more than they could have expected under an ordinary adjudication. In some cases, however, these schemes have been adopted without any apparent benefit to creditors, being merely resolutions that the estate should be wound up and distributed in the same manner as if an adjudication had been made. The chief difference between such schemes and an actual administration in Bankruptcy appears to be that if the scheme is sanctioned the debtor obtains an immediate discharge from his liabilities, and also avoids the personal disqualifications attaching to Bankruptcy, while the costs of preparing and carrying out the scheme form, as a rule, an additional charge upon the estate. In all other respects the procedure and the results are identical. Where the debtor has committed no fault this result is immaterial. Where he has misbehaved himself it rests with the Official Receiver to bring his misconduct to the notice of the Court, and, with the Court, to refuse to approve the scheme or sanction the discharge.

General nature of schemes of arrangement.

With regard to the actual pecuniary results of administration under Bankruptcy, Tables VI. and VII. exhibit an analysis of all receipts and payments in those cases which have been brought to a close during the year, either by Official Receivers acting as trustees or by independent trustees respectively. The number of estates thus brought to a close by Official Receivers was 574, being 27 per cent. of the total number of estates administered by them. The total number closed by independent trustees as already stated was only 13, or less than 2 per cent. of the estates administered by such trustees.

Results of administration in bankruptcy.

With regard to the costs of administration in these cases the following summary affords a clear basis of comparison between the costs of non-official administration as shown in cases of adjudication in bankruptcy under the Act of 1869 (taken from the Comptroller's Report), and the cost of official administration under the Act of 1883. The returns of estates wound-up by non-official trustees during the past year are too few to afford any reliable basis of comparison, but so far as they go they also indicate a reduction in the cost of realisation.

Decrease in costs.

* This includes those estates, which would under the Act of 1869 have been classed as having no receipts, but as a deposit of 5*l.* is now received in all cases, there is strictly speaking no such class under the new Act.

The corresponding figures representing the costs of liquidation by arrangement under the Act of 1869 have not, owing to the absence of regular official statistics, been ascertained in similar detail, but some materials for comparison are afforded by the tables annexed to last report, in which the costs of such proceedings (as based upon the returns of trustees in 4,143 cases of liquidations by arrangement) were worked out in contrast with similar cases in Bankruptcy as based upon the Comptroller's returns for 1882. Adopting the figures given in that report (see Parliamentary Paper C.4072 of 1884, page 5) as the basis of comparison with official administration under the Act of 1883, the following comparative results are obtained.

STATEMENT showing the per-centage of costs of realisation to gross and net assets of Estates realising less than 300*l.*, in Bankruptcies and Liquidations by arrangement under the Act of 1869, and in Official Administrations under the Act of 1883:—

	Under 1869 Act.		Under 1883 Act.

Per-centage of costs to gross assets	51·96	50·69	33·0
Do. do. to net assets	74·64	64·20	37·9

It therefore appears that from whatever point of view the comparison is made there is a marked reduction in the costs of administration. It is, perhaps, right, however, to point out that the returns on which the figures under the 1869 Act are based comprise proceedings which had been more or less protracted in duration, whereas those of the Act of 1883 are necessarily limited to proceedings which were commenced and terminated within the year. It may be that in the case of the more protracted proceedings a somewhat higher average of costs of administration may be developed in future returns than those of the proceedings embraced by the foregoing tables. But so far as present experience goes there is no reason to believe that this will materially modify the results.

It was to be expected that a decrease in costs should be accompanied by an increase in dividends, and the following table affords a comparison of the results in this respect, which clearly demonstrates the pecuniary advantages which the new administration has conferred upon creditors.

With regard to the proceedings at the first meeting of creditors it has been thought desirable to collect some information with reference to the number of creditors taking part in the proceedings and the amount of debts which they represent. It has not been possible before the completion of this report to collect the whole of the statistics for the London district, and the figures furnished in Table VIII. are therefore limited for the present year to County Court cases only. From this it would appear that out of a total number of 2,675 first meetings in which the liabilities (as estimated in Table IV.) amounted to 5,337,475l., the total amount of proofs lodged and admitted to vote at the first meeting was 2,687,562l., so that more than one half of the total amount of liabilities was represented. Looking to the fact that many creditors fail to lodge their proofs in time, or commit technical irregularities which exclude them from voting at the first meeting, it would certainly appear from these figures that there is no ground for the allegation that creditors do not take an interest in the proceedings, but on the contrary the opinion indicated in the preliminary report of last year that under the new Act a very large amount of public interest was exhibited by creditors has been fully confirmed by actual experience. As indicating the extent to which the effects of insolvency are felt throughout the trading community, it should be noted as shown by the same table that the total estimated number of creditors in country cases is about 42,000 whose claims amount to 10l. and upwards, and 61,000 whose claims are under that amount.*

Proportion of creditors represented at first meetings.

With regard to the personal conduct and status of debtors, it will be observed from Table IX. that (apart from the discharges obtained by debtors by means of Composition and Schemes) only 299 debtors out of a total number of 2,935 adjudicated Bankrupts have applied for their discharge, and only 123 of these applications have been granted unconditionally, while in 33 cases the discharge has been granted subject to certain conditions imposed in the interests of creditors, and in 95 cases subject to a temporary suspension. The smallness of these figures may suggest several conclusions. There is now no obstacle whatever to the discharge of an honest debtor who can satisfy the Court that he has not been guilty of commercial irregularities, and it is believed that no discharge has been refused during the year unless where the existence of such irregularities has been clearly proved. It may therefore probably be assumed either that in the great majority of cases such irregularities have been committed, and that the debtors are consequently unwilling to face the ordeal of an application for discharge, or that they are indifferent with regard to it. Both causes may probably have operated. The depressed state of trade throughout the country, and the increased caution on the part of the credit-giving classes, have offered only small inducements to insolvent debtors to re-commence trading, while the more effective operation of the Bankruptcy Law has compelled them to make a fuller surrender of their property, and thereby deprived them of the power of doing so.

Discharge of debtors.

* NOTE.—These figures do not include the statistics of small estates wound up by Administration Orders under section 122, or of deceased debtors' estates wound up under section 125.

tions.

It cannot, however, be doubted that there has been a large amount of gross irregularity and even of criminal misconduct in connexion with the trade of the country. Table X. contains a statement of prosecutions ordered by the Bankruptcy Courts to be conducted by the Public Prosecutor against fraudulent debtors for various offences under the Debtors Act. From this it appears that the total number of such prosecutions ordered amounted to 50, and, although, owing to the fact that some of the debtors had absconded, and to the want of sufficient evidence to satisfy a jury in other cases, only 16 convictions followed by sentence were actually obtained (besides 5 of these cases which have since resulted in conviction, making 21 convictions in respect of last year's cases), it can hardly be doubted that no such orders for prosecution would have been made unless the judges who made them, and who had the benefit of a full acquaintance with the debtor's history as derived from his public examination, had been satisfied that fraud had been committed. Indeed, it is to be feared that these cases only represent a comparatively small proportion of the total number of cases where the debtors' transactions justified strong suspicions of fraudulent conduct, although the evidence might be insufficient to support a prosecution. It may be hoped that the vigorous enforcement of those provisions of the Bankruptcy Law which strike at actual fraud will have the effect of improving the general tone of commercial morality, and lessening to some extent the serious evils which have resulted from a previous laxity in this respect. It cannot, however, be denied that even where fraud has been clearly established the efforts of the public officials to secure convictions have, in many cases, received but little support from the creditors most directly interested, while in some instances these efforts have even been met by positive obstruction. This conduct is a remarkable illustration of the principle which seems to run through all bankruptcy administration, viz., that the interests of commercial morality and the permanent benefit of the community at large form but a small factor in determining the action of individual creditors.

Amendments of law and practice.

Care has been taken to watch and note the cases in which either complaints from outside or the experience of the office has shown amendments to be desirable. In some cases such amendments have been made by alteration of the Rules and Instructions under power given by the Act; in other similar cases amendments are under consideration; whilst in some an amendment of the Act itself may hereafter prove necessary. But it would be premature at the present moment to give any detailed account of these cases.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient Servant.

ANNEX No. II. TO THE SECOND ANNUAL REPORT OF BOARD OF TRADE
UNDER SECTION 131 OF THE BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1883.

Report by the Comptroller in Bankruptcy on Bankruptcies, Liquidations, and Compositions still pending under the Act of 1869.

The number of adjudications made under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, during the year 1884 was 63, and the number of resolutions registered for liquidations by arrangement and compositions with creditors 429 and 418 respectively, making together 910 matters administered under the Act of 1869, the result of proceedings commenced prior to 1st January 1884, on which date the Bankruptcy Act 1883 came into operation. The work.

The number of bankruptcies pending on the 1st January 1884 was 3,606, which number was increased to 3,669 by the adjudications made during the year. Of these 75 were annulled and 549 closed, leaving 3,045 cases pending on the 31st December 1884.

The balance under the control of Trustees has been reduced from 206,091*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.* on the 31st December 1883 to 149,363*l.* 19*s.* 1*d.* on the 31st December 1884, a small portion of this last-mentioned balance having been paid into the Bankruptcy Estates Account under section 162 of the present Act. The balance in the Bank of England representing unclaimed dividends and unappropriated balances was increased during the year from 22,950*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.* to 28,106*l.* 5*s.*

The total cost of realisation and distribution of the estates closed during the year compares favourably with that of the previous year, being 32·23 per cent. on the net assets as against 38·48 per cent. in 1883. This is probably in some measure the result of the passing of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, which has been followed by the disappearance of a considerable number of the worst class of professional Trustees under the Act of 1869, so that the estates closed during 1884 were for the most part administered by a better average class of Trustees than formerly. At the present time the Trustees in about 600 of the Bankruptcies pending on the 31st December 1884 cannot be found.

In the Annex No. V. are tables showing in detail the business done under the Act of 1869 during the year 1884.

ANNEX No. III. TO THE SECOND ANNUAL REPORT OF BOARD OF TRADE UNDER SECTION 131 OF THE BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1883.

Report by the Solicitor to the Board of Trade upon legal proceedings taken by him under the Bankruptcy Act, 1883.

The cases in which legal proceedings have been taken may be generally classified as follows:—

1. Appeals—
  - (a) from County Courts, now heard by a divisional Court;
  - (b) from the High Court to the Court of Appeal;
  - (c) proceedings to vary orders of discharge under Section 28.
2. Cases in the High Court in which the Board of Trade or the Official Receivers have been made parties to legal proceedings.
3. Reviews of taxations before the taxing masters of the High Court by way of appeal from the action of registrars as taxing officers of County Courts.
4. Proceedings under Section 162 against Trustees under previous Bankruptcy Acts.

It is proposed in this Report to refer to a few of the more important cases which have been dealt with.

1. Appeals.

Appeals.
Power of Official Receiver to sell.
*Parker v.
Parker.*

An important question arose in one of the appeals with reference to the powers of an Official Receiver as Trustee under Section 54, by virtue of an adjudication of Bankruptcy, to sell the property of the bankrupt before the appointment of a Trustee by the creditors.

In the case of re Parker & Parker, the Chief Official Receiver, before the appointment of a Trustee but after adjudication, had directed the sale of certain furniture, live stock, and other effects of the bankrupts at their respective residences. Upon the subsequent appointment of Trustees by the creditors they took objection to the action of the Chief Official Receiver, not alleging that the sale had been otherwise than beneficial to the estate, but with a view to establish the principle in future cases that the powers and duties of the Official Receiver whilst acting as Trustee were those of a receiver and manager only as defined in the provisions of Section 70, and were limited, so far as a sale was concerned, to the disposal of perishable goods. The principle thus raised was in itself of general importance as bearing upon the powers and functions of Official Receivers in relation to bankrupts' estates, and therefore upon the interests of the creditors, during the whole period, sometimes of considerable duration, between the adjudication and the appointment of a creditors' Trustee. But an incidental matter of interest was also involved, viz., whether the Board of Trade, in the case of a salaried Official Receiver, or in other cases, the unsalaried Official Receivers, were entitled in respect of property realised by them within the above period to charge a commission upon the proceeds. In the case under consideration the commission amounted to upwards of three hundred pounds, and the Chief Official Receiver being a salaried officer the question affected the Board of Trade in the first instance, and ultimately the Exchequer.

Accordingly the Trustees of the estate moved the High Court for an order against the Chief Official Receiver and the Board of Trade declaring that the sale was illegal, and requiring them to refund the commission charged upon and deducted from the proceeds of the sale.

The matter was argued before Mr. Justice Cave in December last at great length, and that learned judge decided in favour of the contention of the Trustees that the Chief Official Receiver had no legal power to sell the property in question, and he ordered the commission to be refunded accordingly.

The Board of Trade were advised by the Law Officers to appeal from this decision, and the Court of Appeal have since unanimously reversed Mr. Justice Cave's decision, and have laid it down as a principle of law that an Official Receiver being by virtue of Section 54 a Trustee after adjudication for the purposes of the Act may, as one of those purposes, exercise the power of sale conferred by Section 56 before the appointment of a Trustee by the creditors. The Court of Appeal gave leave to the Trustees to appeal to the House of Lords, if upon their calling a meeting the creditors should pass a resolution to that effect, and expressing their desire that the Trustees should appeal. It is believed that the creditors have passed such a resolution, and that the question will therefore again be raised before the House of Lords.

Another important appeal affecting the powers of Official Receivers was that of re Johnston, in which the Official Receiver, acting as Trustee after adjudication, had under the provisions of Section 57 effected a beneficial compromise with certain persons claiming assets of the debtor under bills of sale executed by him. Upon the appointment of a Trustee by the creditors he challenged the action of the Official Receiver, and moved before the Barnet County Court to set aside the compromise, on the ground that the Official Receiver had no power to deal with the estate without the consent of the Board of Trade acting as the Committee of Inspection under the powers of Section 22, subsection (9), no valid appointment of a Committee of Inspection having been made by the creditors. The judge confirmed the action of the Official Receiver and dismissed the motion with costs, to be paid personally by the Trustee.

The Trustee appealed to the High Court, and the case was heard before Mr. Justice Cave and Mr. Justice A. L. Smith, sitting as a divisional Court, who dismissed the appeal.

During the progress of the appeal the Official Receiver in his oral examination deposed that he had obtained the consent of the Board of Trade through the Inspector General in Bankruptcy to the steps which he had taken in effecting the compromise. It was objected by counsel for the appellant Trustee that the Inspector General was not the Board of Trade for the purpose of giving such consent as a Committee of Inspection, and many other questions were raised the decision of which in the result became unnecessary. At the time when the Act came into operation the Board of Trade had published in the London Gazette a notice defining the position and functions of the Inspector General in Bankruptcy, and by Section 140 of the Act, subsection (2), it was provided that a certificate signed by the President of the Board of Trade, that any order made, certificate issued, or act done, is the order, certificate, or act of the Board of Trade, shall be conclusive evidence of the fact so certified. A certificate signed by the President of the Board of Trade was produced to the effect that the consent and permission given by the Inspector General in Bankruptcy to the compromise in question in this case was the consent and permission of the Board of Trade, and upon the production of the certificate the Court gave immediate effect to it by dismissing the appeal.

In another case, that of re Rogers ex parte Rogers, the appeal was from a decision of the Liverpool County Court refusing to sanction a composition offered by the debtor and accepted by the creditors under Section 18. The Official Receiver had reported under the terms of the section that in his opinion the composition was not reasonable, and also that the debtor had been guilty of rash and hazardous speculation in giving further credit to a trader abroad already largely indebted to him. Upon application being made to the Court to approve the composition the judge refused to approve it on the above grounds. The appeal from this decision was heard by Mr. Justice Mathew and Mr. Justice Cave, and in giving his judgment, to the effect that the decision of the County Court must be upheld, Mr. Justice Mathew observed "that this case illustrated very clearly the difference between the old Bankruptcy procedure and the new, and showed greatly, as it appeared to him, the advantage of the new practice over the old." Mr. Justice Cave in his judgment stated that it was not sufficient that the creditors themselves came to the conclusion that the terms of a composition were reasonable, although it was an element which without doubt ought to be taken into account. It was for those who propounded the scheme to satisfy the judge, whose approval they wished to obtain, that it was reasonable and calculated to benefit the general body of creditors. The County Court judge was of opinion that that had not been established, and with his decision Mr. Justice Cave entirely agreed. Then as to rash and hazardous speculation, he continued "I am clearly of opinion that in this case the learned County Court judge has exercised his discretion rightly, and that if I had been in his place I should have come to the same conclusion as he did."

Refusal to approve composition. In re Rogers.

The appeal was therefore dismissed.

Another proceeding in the nature of an appeal or re-hearing has been adopted with beneficial results under the provisions of Section 104, subsection (1). Certain cases were

Re-hearing of orders granting

brought to the knowledge of the Board of Trade in which bankrupts' discharges had been unconditionally granted by judges of County Courts, although the Official Receiver had reported facts under Section 28, which required the judge in the terms of that section either to refuse or suspend the discharge or to grant it subject to conditions. In those cases it was deemed advisable to apply to the Court in the first instance to vary the orders made. An opportunity has thus been afforded to the judges of reconsidering the cases after their attention had been specially called to the terms of Section 28, and it may reasonably be expected that a more precise application of the powers of that important section of the Act will in future be enforced whenever the report of the Official Receiver shall furnish evidence of any of the defaults referred to in the section. In each case the Court has varied the unconditional order by imposing certain conditions.

Cases in
Official
are parties.

These include amongst others, first, cases in which legal proceedings affecting the bankrupt or his estate have been pending at the commencement of the Bankruptcy. Secondly, cases in which the bankrupt appeared to have a valid interest, but there were no assets wherewith to prosecute his claim for the benefit of the estate. Thirdly, cases in which third parties claimed as against the bankrupt and the Official Receiver. These proceedings have been attended with considerable difficulty, and in regard to the cases first and secondly above mentioned the opinion of the late Solicitor General and Mr. Chalmers was taken as to the general course to be adopted on the part of the Official Receivers. The opinion was as follows:—

“1. We do not think it possible to lay down any general principle for the guidance of an Official Receiver in his capacity of Trustee when made a party to an action pending against a bankrupt. Each case must be dealt with on its own merits. As a rule it will not be advisable for the Official Receiver to interfere and defend. Where, however, the estate may be injuriously affected if he do not defend, it will be his duty to find out whether there is a good defence to the action. If he thinks there is a good defence he should endeavour to obtain from the creditors an indemnity against costs. If the creditors will not indemnify him, he should report the fact to the Board of Trade, and obtain their leave to defend the action. Where an Official Receiver does not defend, we do not think the Court would give costs against him, at least in our opinion it ought not to do so.

“2. In the present case we think the Official Receiver should inform the plaintiff's solicitor that he does not wish to interfere in the action, and that if the plaintiff's solicitor will undertake that costs shall not be asked for against him he proposes to take no further steps in the matter. If the plaintiff's solicitor will not give this assurance we think an application should be made to the Court either to dismiss the Official Receiver from the action or for an order declaring that he is made a party for conformity only without personal liability for costs.”

The above opinion has formed the basis of the action taken in the cases submitted to me.

An important provision in the Act which affects the administrative action of the Board of Trade has been discussed before the High Court.

Under Section 21 (2) the Board of Trade are required to certify the due appointment of a Trustee by the creditors before the appointment can have any legal effect. The proposed Trustee is to give security to the satisfaction of the Board, and thereupon they are to grant their certificate, unless they object to his appointment on certain specified grounds, one of which is that his connexion with or relation to the bankrupt or his estate or any particular creditor makes it difficult for him to act with impartiality in the interests of the creditors generally. If the Board make an objection to a Trustee they are required, on request by a majority in value of the creditors, to notify the objection to the High Court, and thereupon the High Court may decide on its validity.

In the bankruptcy of George Games, the appointment of the Trustee was strongly opposed by an important minority of the creditors. They resided principally at two different towns in Breconshire, and it appeared that they had formed themselves into two opposing parties. On the one hand, the creditors at Hay as a body were strongly desirous that the bankrupt's conduct and affairs should be strictly investigated in Bankruptcy. On the other hand, the Brecon creditors preferred a scheme or composition involving a more favourable attitude towards the bankrupt. Among the latter were the Trustee himself and the bankrupt's brother, who had proposed the appointment of the Trustee, and whose dealings with the bankrupt the Hay creditors desired should be investigated. The personal fitness of the Trustee was never questioned, but in view of the fact that his appointment was highly objectionable to a large section of the creditors, and of the strong feeling which had been aroused upon the subject, the Board of Trade made efforts to induce all parties to agree that a gentleman of good standing and independence should be substituted as Trustee, who would be so evidently free from any connexion with the debtor as to give confidence to all concerned. These efforts having failed, the Board of Trade felt bound to give effect to circumstances which, in their opinion, were within the spirit of the Act, by objecting to the Trustee's appointment on the ground that his connexion with and relation to the bankrupt's estate and to his brother, a creditor, made it difficult for the Trustee to act with impartiality in the interests of the creditors generally. The responsibility for the ultimate decision was therefore cast upon the High Court.

Although a majority in number of the creditors supported the objection, the majority in value requested the Board of Trade to notify it to the High Court, and in due course the objection was discussed and decided upon by Mr. Justice Cave, who held that it was not a valid objection to the appointment of a Trustee within the meaning of Section 21, subsection (2).

It is worth notice, in connexion with proceedings in the High Court, that the provisions of Section 97, subsection (3), have been tested with a satisfactory result. Under that section, where a question of law arises in a Bankruptcy proceeding in a County Court which all parties, or one of them and the County Court Judge, desire to remit for decision in the first instance by the High Court, the Judge is required to state a special case for its opinion, and to transmit it for determination.

Obtaining opinion of High Court by means of a special case.

In the case of W. and J. Ludford, at Birmingham, a question had arisen as to the meaning of the words "costs of the execution" in Section 46, subsection (1), of the Act. The Board of Trade had contended that under those words the sheriff was not entitled to "poundage," and had directed the Official Receiver to agree with the sheriff to bring the matter before the High Court in a special case. The procedure was found to be both simple and useful, and upon the argument before Mr. Justice Cave the contention of the Board of Trade was confirmed by the judgment of the Court.

3. Reviews of Taxation before the Taxing Masters of the High Court by way of appeal from the action of Registrars as Taxing Officers of the County Courts.

The provisions under which these proceedings take place are those contained in Rule 104 of the Bankruptcy Rules, 1883. It was not unnatural that under a novel procedure practitioners should include in their bills of costs charges which were not in accordance with the new scale of costs. Accordingly it was found that there were not only numerous cases in which items of that kind were charged, but there was also a considerable divergence of treatment among the various taxing officers of the County Courts. In 66 cases the Board of Trade deemed it right to require a review of these taxations.

4.—Proceedings under Section 162 against Trustees under previous Bankruptcy Acts.

These proceedings arise in cases where unclaimed or undistributed funds or dividends remain in the hands or under the control of any Trustee or other person empowered to collect, receive, or distribute such funds or dividends under the previous Bankruptcy Acts. Proceedings have in 98 instances been taken either to enforce payment of the amount of such balance into the Bankruptcy Estates Account, or to compel Trustees to submit accounts. In one of these cases it was necessary to obtain an order for the committal of two joint Trustees of a bankrupt's estate before payment of the balance was made. One of the parties has since absconded, and the other is a prisoner for debt in one of Her Majesty's prisons.

APPEALS ARISING IN THE BUSINESS OF THE LONDON DISTRICT.

Apart from the cases directly conducted by myself, questions of importance bearing upon the working of the Act have arisen out of the business of the London district under the immediate charge of the Chief Official Receiver. These questions have been dealt with by Mr. Aldridge, the Official Solicitor under former Acts, acting in concert and communication with me.

Power of discharging debtor cannot be conferred by a scheme on the Committee of Inspection. In re Clark and another.

In one case, that of re Clark and another, the debtors appealed from a decision of the Registrar refusing to approve a scheme of arrangement, and an important question was raised as to the discharge of the debtor. It being desired to take the matter out of Bankruptcy by the acceptance of a scheme of arrangement, the provisions of Section 28, which relate to the discharge where the Bankruptcy proceeds, were not applicable, yet the scheme contained a clause to the effect that "the debtor shall be discharged when the Committee of Inspection so resolve." It was admitted that the object of this clause was to obtain for the benefit of the creditors such after acquired property of the debtors as the Committee of Inspection might resolve should be applied for the purpose.

The Chief Official Receiver in his report drew the attention of the Court to the clause in question, and submitted that under the provisions of the section the creditors had no power to suspend or grant the discharge of the debtors, and that such power ought not to be conferred on the Committee of Inspection. The Registrar held that upon the approval by the Court of a scheme of arrangement under Section 18 of the Act such approval was in itself equivalent to giving a discharge to the debtor, whereas in the present case the creditors had assumed to themselves power to suspend the discharge, and further, that a resolution to that effect being ultra vires the scheme could not be confirmed.

Upon the appeal the Court (Lords Justices Baggallay, Cotton, and Lindley), confirmed the decision of the Registrar, and held that a scheme containing a provision that a debtor shall be discharged when the Committee of Inspection so resolve was not in accordance with the provisions of Section 18, but was in fact contrary to those provisions and was unreasonable, and the scheme was therefore one which the Court could not approve.

What is rash and hazardous speculation.

In two other cases (re Young and re Salaman) of refusal by the Registrar to approve a scheme of arrangement, the question was under discussion, what is "rash and hazardous speculation" so as to justify the Court in refusing to approve the scheme, and in each case the Court of Appeal confirmed the Registrar's refusal to approve it. In these cases the judgments of the Court of Appeal contain important expressions of opinion upon the question what constitutes "rash and hazardous speculation," and in the case of re Salaman it was clearly held that the conduct of the debtor prior to the Act coming into operation must be taken into account, and not merely his conduct subsequent to that period.

Report of Official Receiver prima facie evidence.

In another case of refusal to approve a composition, re Wallace, the Court of Appeal held that the report of the Official Receiver was prima facie evidence for the purpose of Section 18, subsection 6, and that the same proof of the facts referred to in Section 28 (3), which is sufficient in the case of the discharge of a bankrupt under that section, would also be sufficient proof in the case of the approval of a composition or scheme under Section 18, subsection 6.

Keeping proper books.

The Master of the Rolls further held that in determining upon the approval or refusal of a composition or scheme of arrangement the proper keeping of books was a matter of primary importance, and that the fact that a large majority of the creditors are desirous to accept a scheme is no ground for reversing the Registrar's refusal to approve it, the object of the new Act being to prevent reckless traders from escaping the consequence of their conduct by paying a nominal dividend.

Solicitor to the Board of Trade.

under the immediate charge of the Chief Official Receiver. These questions have been dealt with by Mr. Aldridge, the Official Solicitor under former Acts, acting in concert and communication with me.

Power of discharging debtor cannot be conferred by a scheme on the Committee of Inspection. In re Clark and another.

In one case, that of re Clark and another, the debtors appealed from a decision of the Registrar refusing to approve a scheme of arrangement, and an important question was raised as to the discharge of the debtor. It being desired to take the matter out of Bankruptcy by the acceptance of a scheme of arrangement, the provisions of Section 28, which relate to the discharge where the Bankruptcy proceeds, were not applicable, yet the scheme contained a clause to the effect that "the debtor shall be discharged when the Committee of Inspection so resolve." It was admitted that the object of this clause was to obtain for the benefit of the creditors such after acquired property of the debtors as the Committee of Inspection might resolve should be applied for the purpose.

The Chief Official Receiver in his report drew the attention of the Court to the clause in question, and submitted that under the provisions of the section the creditors had no power to suspend or grant the discharge of the debtors, and that such power ought not to be conferred on the Committee of Inspection. The Registrar held that upon the approval by the Court of a scheme of arrangement under Section 18 of the Act such approval was in itself equivalent to giving a discharge to the debtor, whereas in the present case the creditors had assumed to themselves power to suspend the discharge, and further, that a resolution to that effect being ultra vires the scheme could not be confirmed.

Upon the appeal the Court (Lords Justices Baggallay, Cotton, and Lindley), confirmed the decision of the Registrar, and held that a scheme containing a provision that a debtor shall be discharged when the Committee of Inspection so resolve was not in accordance with the provisions of Section 18, but was in fact contrary to those provisions and was unreasonable, and the scheme was therefore one which the Court could not approve.

What is rash and hazardous speculation.

In two other cases (re Young and re Salaman) of refusal by the Registrar to approve a scheme of arrangement, the question was under discussion, what is "rash and hazardous speculation" so as to justify the Court in refusing to approve the scheme, and in each case the Court of Appeal confirmed the Registrar's refusal to approve it. In these cases the judgments of the Court of Appeal contain important expressions of opinion upon the question what constitutes "rash and hazardous speculation," and in the case of re Salaman it was clearly held that the conduct of the debtor prior to the Act coming into operation must be taken into account, and not merely his conduct subsequent to that period.

Report of Official Receiver prima facie evidence.

In another case of refusal to approve a composition, re Wallace, the Court of Appeal held that the report of the Official Receiver was prima facie evidence for the purpose of Section 18, subsection 6, and that the same proof of the facts referred to in Section 28 (3), which is sufficient in the case of the discharge of a bankrupt under that section, would also be sufficient proof in the case of the approval of a composition or scheme under Section 18, subsection 6.

Keeping proper books.

The Master of the Rolls further held that in determining upon the approval or refusal of a composition or scheme of arrangement the proper keeping of books was a matter of primary importance, and that the fact that a large majority of the creditors are desirous to accept a scheme is no ground for reversing the Registrar's refusal to approve it, the object of the new Act being to prevent reckless traders from escaping the consequence of their conduct by paying a nominal dividend.

Board of Trade,
20th July 1885.

Solicitor to the Board of Trade.

The official receiver shall also be allowed all proper out of pocket expenses. Where he executes any conveyance or transacts any legal or other business at the instance of third parties, the parties interested shall be required to pay for his time occupied and for that of his clerks according to such scale as the Board of Trade may from time to time prescribe, and to pay all legal or other necessary expenses incurred by him.

We, the undersigned Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, do hereby sanction the foregoing scales of fees and per-centages, and do direct that the fees to be taken by stamps shall be those mentioned in Tables A. and B., and that the fees mentioned in Tables C., D., E., and F. shall be taken in money, except that such of the fees and allowances referred to in Table F. as have hitherto been taken by stamps shall continue to be taken by stamps: the stamps to be used shall be Bankruptcy fee stamps, with the exception of the penny stamp on every special proxy or voting paper which may be a Postage and Inland Revenue Stamp.

And we further direct that wherever practicable the stamp shall be affixed or the money paid in respect of every fee mentioned in Tables A., B., C., D., and F., before the proceeding is had in respect of which the fee is payable, and that the charge to be made by the London Gazette for the insertion of each notice authorised by the Act or Rules shall be five shillings.

ORDER as to the FEES and PER-CENTAGES which are required to be taken for BANKRUPTCY PROCEEDINGS in the HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE and COURT OF APPEAL by means of STAMPS, amending the previous Order on the same subject, published in the Supplement to the London Gazette of the 28th of December 1883.

WHEREAS by section three of the Public Offices Fees Act, 1879, it is provided that the Treasury may from time to time make and when made, revoke, alter, and add to, regulations for all or any of the following purposes respecting fees in any Public Office, that is to say,—

C. Rivers Wilson,
Comptroller General.

REPORT of the COMPTROLLER and AUDITOR GENERAL upon the ACCOUNT of the Transactions of the PAYMASTER GENERAL on behalf of the COURT OF CHANCERY, and upon the BALANCE SHEET of RECEIPTS and EXPENDITURE of the PAYMASTER GENERAL, for the period from 1st March 1883 to 29th February 1884; also, upon the ACCOUNT of the COMMISSIONERS FOR THE REDUCTION OF THE NATIONAL DEBT on behalf of the COURT OF CHANCERY during the same period; pursuant to the Act 35 & 36 Vict. c. 44, s. 20.

ACCOUNT OF RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURE OF THE PAYMASTER GENERAL.

THIS Account has been only partially examined, in accordance with the proposal of the Lords of the Treasury of 5th October 1882, the correspondence in relation to which has been laid before Parliament, and even this partial examination has been discontinued after 31st December 1883; there has been no examination, pursuant to authority, of the transactions of the Paymaster in the months of January and February 1884. In explanation of this I have to state that the new system of transacting the business at the Pay Office, pursuant to the Rules of 1884 relating to the funds of the Supreme Court, made it desirable that there should be no delay in commencing the examination of the Account from 1st March 1884, and that I was unable with my present Staff to enter upon this examination without abandoning the arrears of the previous period.

The deliberations of the Departmental Committee, referred to in the printed correspondence to which I have alluded above, have recently been resumed, and it is hoped that an understanding may shortly be arrived at as to the nature and extent of the Audit to be required.

STATEMENT OF THE SECURITIES AND MONEY APPEARING TO BE IN COURT ON 29TH FEBRUARY 1884.

It will be seen that this Statement includes a sum of 49,962,997 l. 18 s. 9 d. of "Consolidated 3 l. per Cent. Annuities," but it is to be observed that although that amount represents the total of sums which were standing, on the date named, at the credit of the various Suitors' Accounts in the Paymaster's Books, it is more, by 40,000,000 l., than the amount of Consols standing at the credit of the Paymaster in the Books of the Bank of England. Pursuant to the Act 46 & 47 Vict. c. 54, s. 3, this amount of Stock was cancelled in August 1883, and a Terminable Annuity of 2,665,835 l., payable half yearly to the National Debt Commissioners, was substituted for the cancelled Stock in the Bank books.

It is provided by the Act (Section 9) that the Commissioners shall pay to the Paymaster, each half-year, an amount equal to the dividend on the Annuities converted, and this accordingly forms part of the sum shown in the Paymaster's Account as "Dividends on Securities in Court."

To this Statement the usual Certificates of the Bank of England, in verification of the Cash and Securities held by them, are appended. As in former years, there are many differences, which are to be accounted for, partly by the fact that the Bank do not hold Certificates of all the Securities; partly from the withdrawal of Certificates for the purpose of conversion or sub-division; partly from a difference of date between the delivery, into or out of the custody of the Bank, of the Certificates, and the entry of the amounts in the Books of the Paymaster, when transferred in or out.

STATEMENT OF BOXES, &c.

The Certificate of the Bank of England is appended to this Statement, showing that the Boxes and Miscellaneous Effects included in the Paymaster's Statement were in the custody of the Bank on 29th February 1884.

STATISTICS.

The number of Causes and Matters open in the Books has increased, in the period of this Account, from 35,927 to 36,584, and at least four-fifths of these are working Accounts. Some idea may be formed of the growth of this Account, from the fact, that on the 31st of August 1874, the number of Suitors' Accounts was 31,827; showing an increase, in ten years, of 4,757 Accounts.

In like manner, the number of Drafts paid within the year has increased during the same period, from 45,625 to 57,552, showing an increase of 11,927.

ACCOUNT OF THE NATIONAL DEBT COMMISSIONERS.

This Account shows a diminished Balance, the Commissioners having, during the year, repaid to the Paymaster 150,000 l. of the cash placed in their hands; but there is a corresponding diminution in their liability, and it will be seen that, valuing the Securities in the hands of the Commissioners at the Bank average price on 29th February 1884, the balance in their hands in excess of their liabilities was represented by a sum of 436,775 l. 16 s. 8 d. This, then, may be considered as the outcome of the use which they have made of the money placed in their hands since the 7th of January 1873. But this Account does not exhibit all the real transactions which have taken place in the period now in question between the Commissioners and the Paymaster. In the month of January 1884 a sum of 1,332,917 l. 10 s. was transferred to the National Debt Commissioners as the first instalment of the Terminable Annuity created pursuant to the Act of 46 & 47 Vict. c. 54; and a portion of that amount, viz., 587,500 l. was transferred by them to the Paymaster's Account as the half-yearly dividend upon the 40,000,000 l. Consols standing at the credit of the Suitors' Accounts in his books. It appeared to me to be a question whether, with reference to Section 2 of the Supreme Court of Judicature (Funds) Act, 1883, which continues the provisions of the Act of 1872, these transactions, and also the disposal by the Commissioners of the balance of the half-yearly instalment, ought not properly to be included in the Commissioners' Account of "Chancery Funds," annually reported on by me, the title of which Account would, in that case, be adapted to comprise the transactions pursuant to the Act passed in 1883, as well as those pursuant to the Court of Chancery Funds Act, 1872.

Accordingly, on the 2nd May 1884, I represented my views upon this subject to the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, but no reply has been received by me to that communication. A copy of my letter is appended, and also a copy of a further letter upon the same subject, dated 23rd July 1884.

Comptroller General of the Receipt and Issue of Her Majesty's Exchequer, and Auditor General of Public Accounts.

LETTERS referred to in the foregoing REPORT.

(No. 470.)

Sir,

Exchequer and Audit Department, 2 May 1884.

I AM directed by the Comptroller and Auditor General to request the attention of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to the operation of the National Debt Act, 1883, and the Supreme Court Fund Rules, 1884, so far as they affect the audit of the Accounts of the National Debt Commissioners in respect of the Suitors' Funds of the Supreme Court.

In the year 1874 a correspondence took place between the Treasury and this Office upon the subject of the Account which should be rendered by the Commissioners in respect of Chancery transactions, and the Comptroller and Auditor General was informed by a letter, dated 31st August 1874, No. 13,824, that the Commissioners had been requested to forward to this Office every month an account of their transactions in pursuance of the provisions of the 20th section of the Chancery Funds Act, 1872, in a form which had been recommended by the Treasury Officers of Account, accompanied by the necessary vouchers.

The Account in question has been regularly forwarded in accordance with those instructions, and also an Annual Abstract Account, which has been reported upon every year, together with the Account of the Chancery Paymaster.

Pursuant to the National Debt Act, 1883, 40,000,000 l. of Chancery Stock have been converted into Terminable Annuities.

By Section 9 of the same Act it is provided that "when any Perpetual Annuities have, in pursuance of this Act, been converted into a Terminable Annuity, payable to the Paymaster General, that Terminable Annuity shall be paid to the National Debt Commissioners, who shall thereout pay to the Paymaster General such amount as would, but for the conversion, be for the time being payable as dividends on the said Perpetual Annuities converted (to be applied by him in like manner as the dividends for the time being payable on those Annuities), and shall from time to time invest the residue in the purchase of Perpetual Annuities in the names of the National Debt Commissioners, on account of the Supreme Court of Judicature, and shall invest from time to time in like manner the dividends received on such investments, and on any accumulations thereof."

The Section then goes on to provide for the transfer to the Paymaster General, if required by the Lord Chancellor, of all or any of the Annuities so purchased, and for the final adjustment of the transactions with the Paymaster General's Account of Suitors' Funds.

A Cash Account has been rendered to this Department for the month of January 1884, showing, on the one side, the receipt from the Bank of England of the first half of the Annuity created under the National Debt Act, and, on the other side, the disposal of that sum; but the question has arisen, whether, with reference to the Supreme Court of Judicature (Funds, &c.) Act, 1883, read together with the Chancery Funds Act, 1872, Section 20, the Account of these transactions should not be incorporated into the Account rendered to this Office, pursuant to the directions of the Treasury of August 1874, above referred to.

A further question has arisen, whether in the same Account there should not be included the transactions which will take place between the National Debt Commissioners and the Paymaster General for the time being for and on behalf of the Supreme Court of Judicature, in pursuance of the Supreme Court Rules, 1884, Nos. 89 and 90, in like manner with the transactions pursuant to Rules 91 and 92 of 1884, and and the Income Tax referred to in Rule 93 (Exchange and other transactions with the National Debt Commissioners). The Comptroller and Auditor General will be obliged by the receipt of their Lordships' decision upon the above points, and by their giving any instructions which they may think desirable to the National Debt Commissioners.

The Secretary to the Treasury.

I have, &c.
(signed) H. Treherne.

(No. 759.)

Sir,

Exchequer and Audit Department, 23 July 1884.

In the absence of any reply to the letter addressed to you from this Department on the 2nd May last, upon the subject of the transactions which should be introduced into the Account to be rendered by the National Debt Commissioners in connection with the Chancery Funds Supreme Court of Judicature and National Debt (1883) Acts, I am directed by the Comptroller and Auditor General to observe that, as it will be his duty to report in the autumn upon the Account of Chancery Funds for the year ending 29th February 1884, it is very desirable that the decision of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury in this regard should be communicated to this Department as soon as convenient.

The Secretary to the Treasury,
&c. &c. &c.

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY ACT, 1880.

RETURN of the Total Number of Cases Tried in COUNTY COURTS; Amount of Compensation Claimed; the Amount Awarded; the Number of Cases in which Application has been made to Remove the Case for Trial from the County Court to the Superior Court; the Number of Cases in which the Application has been Granted; and, the Ground of the Application in those Cases in which it has been Granted.

Note. By the Employers' Liability Act, 1880, no reason requires to be assigned for the removal of a case, brought in a County (Sheriff) Court, to the Superior Court (Court of Session), such removal taking place as a matter of course on the application of either plaintiff or defendant, and therefore, the last three columns of this Return are blank.

It will be observed that the "amount awarded" when compared with the "amount of compensation claimed" is small, but as some cases ended by a formal decree of absolutor, there is no doubt that some of these were the subject of compromise. The amount of damage paid in such cases is of course not known, and, therefore, not included under the head "Amount Awarded." And it is to be kept in view that the decisions in a few of the cases included in this Return were appealed to the Court of Session, and the decision of the Sheriff may have been varied or reversed, either by awarding sums, or recalling or reducing sums awarded.

REGULATIONS respecting the DIRECTOR of PUBLIC PROSECUTIONS.

(1.) The cases in which it shall be the duty of the Director of Public Prosecutions to institute, undertake, or carry on a criminal proceeding in respect of an offence are the following:

- (a.) Where the offence is punishable with death;
- (b.) Where the offence is of a class the prosecution of which has hitherto been undertaken by the Solicitor of the Treasury;
- (c.) Where an order in that behalf is given to the Director by the Secretary of State or the Attorney General; and
- (d.) Where it appears to the Director that the offence or the circumstances of its commission is or are of such a character that a prosecution in respect thereof is required in the public interest, and that owing to the importance or difficulty of the case or to other circumstances the action of the Director of Public Prosecutions is necessary to secure the due prosecution of the offender.

(2.) The proceedings to be instituted, undertaken, or carried on in any of the above cases shall be such as the Director of Public Prosecutions considers to be necessary to secure the due prosecution of the offender.

(3.) It shall be the duty of the Director of Public Prosecutions, either on application or on his own initiative, to give in any case which appears to him to be of importance or difficulty advice to clerks of justices of the peace and to chief officers of police and to such other persons as he may think right, and such advice may, at the discretion of the Director, be given verbally or in writing.

(4.) Where it is brought to the notice of the Director of Public Prosecutions that a case has been reserved for the opinion of the High Court of Justice under the Act of the Session of the eleventh and twelfth years of the reign of Her present Majesty, chapter seventy-eight, intituled, "An Act for the further amendment of the Administration of the Criminal Law," and that counsel has not been instructed for the prosecution, he shall, if he thinks the case of sufficient importance, or is so directed by the Attorney General, instruct counsel to appear for the prosecution.

(5.) The Director of Public Prosecutions may assist prosecutors by authorising them to incur special costs for the purpose of—

- (a.) The preparation of scientific evidence;
- (b.) The remuneration of scientific witnesses;
- (c.) The payment of extra fees to counsel;
- (d.) The preparation of plans or models.

And for any special purpose which the Attorney General may sanction.

The Director of Public Prosecutions may also sanction the payment of any special costs incurred for any of the said purposes in any criminal proceeding, if he is satisfied that the incurring of costs for that purpose was requisite for the proper conduct of the proceeding, and that some emergency or other good reason rendered it necessary to incur such costs without his previous authority.

(6.) It shall be the duty of the Director of Public Prosecutions to cause the chief officer of every police district within the meaning of the Prosecution of Offences Offences Act, 1884, to send to such Director the information which such chief officer is for the time being required by the regulations under the Prosecution of Offences Acts, 1879 and 1884, to give.

(7.) Where the Director of Public Prosecutions institutes or undertakes or carries on any criminal proceeding it shall be his duty to give the notice required under Section 5 of the Prosecution of Offences Act, 1879, for obtaining the documents and things which justices of the peace or coroners are required by that section to transmit to the Director; and the Director of Public Prosecutions shall cause every such document and thing to be delivered or sent by post in a registered letter to the proper officer of the Court in which the trial is to be had a reasonable time before such trial.

(8.) Where it is brought to the knowledge of the Director of Public Prosecutions that a prosecution for an offence instituted before any justice or police court is withdrawn or is not proceeded with within a reasonable time, it shall be his duty, if he thinks that it is or may be necessary for him to institute, undertake, or carry on such prosecution, to obtain from the clerk to such justice or police court the documents and things which such clerk is, by the Prosecution of Offences Acts, 1879 and 1884, or may from time to time under any regulations in force thereunder be required to transmit.

(9.) The Director of Public Prosecutions may employ any solicitor to act as his agent in the conduct of a prosecution, and, after examination of the costs and charges of such agent, shall certify the amount which he finds to be reasonable and proper to be paid.

(10.) The action of the Director of Public Prosecutions shall in all matters, including the selection and instruction of counsel, be subject to the directions of the Attorney General.

LAND AGITATION IN SKYE.

The Castle, Inverness,
October 31, 1884.

SIR,

I HAVE the honour to enclose you herewith copy of my Report of this date to the Sub-Committee of the Police Committee, on this subject.

I forwarded to you a telegram of this date intimating that a detachment of police was attacked and forcibly turned back from Uig yesterday, when proceeding to that district to protect persons threatened with outrage by the crofters, and beg to state that from mark thus = on page 10 of the accompanying Report will be found full particulars of the present state of matters affecting the law and peace of that district of this county.

The Right Hon. the Secretary of State, Home Department, London.

I have, &c.

Chief Constable of Inverness-shire.

No. 2.

PAPERS RELATING TO SKYE.

REPORT to the SUB-COMMITTEE of the Police Committee of the County of Inverness by the Chief Constable.

MY LORDS AND GENTLEMEN,

I BEG respectfully to refer you to my special Report of 6th June last on this subject.

Since then the state of land agitation has been gradually increasing in its serious aspect.

In the beginning of June, John Campbell, junior, son of and residing with John Campbell, Crofter, Hamara, Glendale, took possession of grazings at Hamara, by placing some cattle there. The Hamara herd drove the said cattle (nine stirks) off the ground to Campbell's father's ground, but Campbell immediately drove them back again.

The crofters of the township of Ferrinvicquarrie took possession of hill pasture there, of Dr. Martin, and placed their cattle thereon.

On 14th June, Mr. Robertson of Greshornish sent three men to put John Campbell's cattle off the Hamara grazings, but Campbell immediately drove them back again, and about the middle of June, the Ferrinvicquarrie crofters ceased to put their cattle on Dr. Martin's ground there.

About the 26th of June, John Campbell arranged with the proprietors of Glendale to remove the cattle from Hamara to some grazings which they gave him at Ramsaig, temporarily.

On Monday the 18th of August, Professor Blackie, Mr. Macfarlane, M.P., and other gentlemen, visited Glendale, and met the people there, in connexion with the land agitation.

It was rumoured during the summer months, and later on, that secret societies existed in the district for the purpose of committing outrages on proprietors, and their property, and also for the injury of persons unfavourable to the crofters' agitation. Beyond the declaration of secrecy exacted from persons who became members of the Land League, and kindred associations, no direct evidence has been got of the formation of secret societies of the serious nature referred to.

In the end of August last, John Campbell above referred to, received notice from Mr. Robertson to remove the cattle which he, Campbell, had at Ramsaig, but refused to do so. In the beginning of September he went to the Uist markets, and purchased more cattle, and sent them to Ramsaig.

On 18th September last, Constable Macvicar, Colbost found on the roadside there a printed copy of the seditious circular referred to by Mr. Macfarlane, M.P. in the House of Commons, and supposed to have been circulated in the Islands and Highlands. A copy of said circular is hereto appended.

In the middle of September last, Neil Macpherson, crofter, Upper Milivaig, Glendale, followed the example of John Campbell, and sent his, Macpherson's cattle to the proprietors' farm of Waterstein for grazing. Macpherson is one of the crofters who was interdicted in 1882 by the proprietors from grazing cattle on said farm.

In the end of September, the crofters of Ferrinvicquarrie placed their cattle on the grazings of the farm of Scor there. On 3rd October, Mr. Nicol Martin, junior, Husabost and Donald Lamont, shepherd, Uig of Husabost, went to Scor and removed the cattle of the crofters off said grazing, but the crofters immediately assembled, and proceeded in a body, and met Mr. Martin and the shepherd, and turned the cattle back again, and informed Mr. Martin that they were determined to keep their cattle on the farm of Scor.

In the first week of October, the crofters of the townships of Upper and Lower Milivaig began sending their cattle quite openly to the farm of Waterstein and allowing them to remain there.

About the same time a wire fence erected by the proprietors as a march fence, between hill pasture of crofters and the grazing of Waterstein, was broken down, supposed maliciously. The winders that fixed the wires to the straining posts were broken, which could only be done by using a hammer or a heavy weight, and thus let the several wires of the fence loose for about a quarter of a mile in length. Also at another part of said fence, situated about half a mile in a southerly direction from the part above referred to, another piece of said fence, about a quarter of a mile in length, was similarly broken and thrown down. The iron screws fixing the supports to the straining posts having been broken by a stone about 28 lbs. in weight, found at the place, bearing marks indicating that it had been so used. It is at the places so broken down of the fence that the cattle of the crofters are being put on to the grazings.

Neil Macpherson, crofter aforesaid, and John Morrison, and Archibald Macpherson, crofters at Upper Milivaig, are among those who put their cattle on said grazings, and are three of those who were interdicted in 1882. They say that they are aware they are breaking the law, but are not afraid of any force that may be sent against them but soldiers, and they believe that soldiers will not be sent. Up to the 21st current, the crofters of the township of Ferrinvicquarrie were keeping their cattle on the farm of Scor, and herding them there.

John Campbell, Hamara, and the crofters at Upper Milivaig above-named, are still keeping their cattle on the grazings of Waterstein.

The people of the district continue in an excited state over these matters, and it is with the utmost caution that Constable Macvicar performs his patrol duty among them. He manages, however, to discharge his duties with wonderful prudence. In inquiring into any case he must do so in a very guarded manner.

Kilmuir.

The state of matters in connexion with land agitation, as referred to in my special report of 6th June last, has now come to crisis in this district at Uig.

During the month of June, the crofters at Garafad placed some of their stock of cattle on the grazings attached to Staffin Inn. On the 20th of that month the crofters were warned to keep their cattle off said pasture by Major Fraser's local manager, and placed a herd to keep them off, and on the following day, Saturday 21st June, the Garafad people, men and women, turned out, and drove their cattle on to said pasture.

Meetings of the local branch of the Land League have been frequently held throughout the district, and large gatherings of the people have taken place at the Kilt Rock, Quiraing, and other places, and on 1st August, the people of the Staffin district had a meeting at Garafad, and afterwards proceeded in a body to Staffin Inn, and remonstrated with a meeting of the school board being held therein.

At Land League meetings later held, those who attended the same are said to have made a declaration, and banded themselves to carry out several resolutions passed at such meetings in regard to land. Each crofter agreed to pay ten shillings, and each cottar five shillings, agreeing not to do any work to any of the district farmers, and that under pain of injury to person or property, and it is stated that they have appointed persons to watch over the district to see that these directions are carried out.

It has been arranged that all the crofters on the Kilmuir estate are to hold a mass meeting at Quiraing on 31st October this date.

On the morning of 17th October current, a peat stack belonging to John Graham, crofter, Bengown, parish of Kilmuir, was discovered, about 2 o'clock, to have been set on fire, and suspected to have been done against Graham because he did not attend a meeting of crofters held on 3rd October.

A no rent proclamation has been issued, and published in the "Oban Times" of 25th October, from the Kilmuir branch of the Highland Land Law Reform Association.

Referring specially to the meeting of the crofters to be held at Quiraing on this date, they made it known that they intended forcibly to carry to said meeting Alexander Macleod, farmer, Scudaburgh, James Urquhart, farmer and Innkeeper, Uig, and John Mackenzie, manager, Uig Torver, for the purpose of demanding some explanations from them.

In anticipation of these outrages, Major Fraser of Kilmuir, made application for special police protection for the three men named, and on Tuesday last, the 28th current, in consultation with your Chairman and Mr. Anderson and Mr. W. R. Grant, it was arranged that I should send six additional men to Skye for the above purpose. I accordingly despatched that contingent in charge of Superintendent Aitchison, on the following morning (Wednesday), with instructions to double the constables at each station in the district of Uig and Kilmuir, and if any or each of these three men declared that they were in bodily fear, to give them each the protection of two of these constables. Generally my instructions to Superintendent Aitchison were to preserve the peace, prevent crime or outrage, and to maintain the law forcibly if need be.

Superintendent Aitchison accordingly proceeded to carry out these instructions, and at 2.30 o'clock this morning, I received from him the annexed telegram of the deforcement of himself and men when near Uig yesterday evening. I annex copies of my further telegrams to and from him.

I have here to report that as agreed to at the meeting of police committee of 23rd September, application was made to the Home Office for a supply of revolvers for the use of the police force, and by instructions from the War Office, I have now received 50 revolvers and a thousand rounds of ammunition, and the necessary belts and pouches.

I have reported to the Sheriff having so received these, and asked his orders and instructions for their issue to the force.

With special reference to the present serious outbreak of disorder and lawlessness in Skye, I beg respectfully, but candidly, to state that the available force of police under my command, is entirely inadequate to maintain order, and carry out the law.

At present including Superintendent Aitchison and his detachment, there are 22 men in Skye, 14 of these are in Portree.

I am prepared to assemble and send on very short notice at least 20 additional men, who, along with those already in Portree, should be armed with revolvers. That force, I think, would be sufficient to remain at Portree to maintain order and for special emergency, but that number would not be sufficient to proceed to Uig or Kilmuir at present.

I have received from Mr. Anderson copy of the Sheriff's letter to him of 29th October current, and I am ready to carry out so far as possible the sheriff's instructions contained therein.

I now beg the special instructions of your Committee.

I think I should, in terms of the Secretary of State's regulations, in addition to sending him a copy of this report, send him a telegram of this date announcing shortly the deforcement of the police, and a like enclosure and telegram to the Sheriff.

MEN and I arrived about six, within quarter mile of my hotel; met by about two hundred people, asked us what took us there, we told them we came to keep the peace. They said there was no occasion for that, that they never broke it, and would not allow us to proceed further; shoved us back and drove us before them for five miles. Constable Maclaren was with them. I did not get to speak to him, and they took him in the crowd to Glenhinisdale Bridge, but was not allowed near us, they said that he was a good man, and no more police required there, and that they would take care of him, and see him safe home. None of us injured, but shoved and kicked all the way. We can't go back. Maclaren wrote not to bring the men down, that they were ready for attacking us, but we off before the letter arrived. Inspector thinks that the sooner we are off the better, from the threats of the crowd. Wire orders.

No. 4.

EXCERPT from MINUTE of MEETING of the SPECIAL SUB-COMMITTEE of the POLICE COMMITTEE of the County of INVERNESS, held on the 31st day of October 1884.

Lord Lovat in the Chair.

READ Report from the Chief Constable, from which it appears that Major Fraser, of Kilmuir, had, on 23rd current, intimated that he had of that date received such alarming accounts from Uig, that he was under the necessity of applying for some additional police to be concentrated at Portree or Uig, so as to be prepared for any outbreak, the risk of which their presence might help to avert, that independent information obtained from the police of Skye having confirmed the alarming state of matters indicated in Major Fraser's letter, the Chief Constable, after conferring with the chairman of the Police Committee and the Procurator Fiscal, had despatched the Deputy Chief Constable and six constables to Skye to augment the force of that Island, and that while on their way to Uig of Kilmuir yesterday, the Deputy Chief Constable and his men had been met within a quarter of a mile from Uig by two hundred people of the district, who kicked and shoved and forcibly drove back the police, following them a distance of five miles, and that they had in consequence been obliged to return to the village of Portree, where they awaited orders. It was further reported that Major Fraser's letter had been communicated to the Sheriff of the county, who had expressed the opinion that the request for an additional force of police, to be stationed in Skye, was reasonable, and ought to be granted, and recommended (1) that as many additional men as can be spared for the purpose should be sent to Skye and stationed at Portree so as to be able at a moment's notice to proceed to any part of Skye or the Long Island, when their services may be required; (2) that in addition to those stationed at Portree, five additional men at least should be stationed at Uig, and the same number at Dunvegan, these to patrol together the disturbed districts during the night, both to protect any of the lieges whose property or persons may be in danger, and to apprehend any persons who may be found in suspicious circumstances without being able to give a reasonable explanation; (3) that all the additional police sent to Skye as well as those located in the disturbed districts should be armed with revolvers; that the men should be openly instructed in the use of these at Portree; that the Chief Constable should issue full instructions to the police as to the occasions when they are to wear the revolvers, and the purposes for which they are to be used; (4) that as many as possible of the additional police, more especially those engaged in patrol duty, should be mounted, and (5) that an application should be made to Government to station a gunboat with marines at Portree in order that if necessary, the police stationed there may at once be conveyed to Uig, Dunvegan, South Uist, or other disturbed districts, in the event of disturbances taking place.

The Committee, after anxious deliberation, were of opinion, owing to the rapidly increasing disaffection, and the growing boldness evinced by overt acts of lawlessness among the crofters in the Islands forming part of this county, that no force of police was now able to cope with the emergency, and while adopting the recommendation of the Sheriff as to sending armed constables to Portree for the purposes specified in his letter, resolved to apply to Government for a gunboat to be stationed at Portree or other port bordering on the disturbed districts, with such number of marines as will be sufficient, not only to protect the police constables in the performance of their duty in preserving the peace, but to quell any riots with which the constables may be found unable to contend.

The clerk was instructed to communicate this Minute and Resolution to the Home Secretary and the Lord Advocate, and to crave the favour of an early compliance with the application for a gunboat.

The Chief Constable was authorised to employ a suitable instructor, to instruct the constables in the use of the revolver, and also, if necessary, to charter a ship for the accommodation of the constables to be employed in the Island, and he was instructed to adopt and carry out so far as practicable the suggestions contained in the Sheriff's letter above mentioned.

KILMUIR CROFTERS.

Constabulary Office, Portree,
October 31, 1884.

SIR,

I BEG to report that we had great difficulty in obtaining conveyances here to convey us to Uig yesterday, but Sheriff Speirs spoke to the innkeepers, and at three o'clock they gave us two conveyances to go the length of Glenhinisdale Bridge with us. This bridge is the march between Lord Macdonald's estate, and that of Major Fraser. The drivers drove us two miles and a half farther on. All the men (nine, including myself), were there.

We walked from there until we came in sight of the Uig Inn, and about 150 yards from it, we were met on the road by a crowd of people numbering about 200. P.C. Maclaren was standing on a parapet above them. I did not get to speak to him, but he nodded to us.

The crowd asked what brought us there. I told them and so also did Inspector McDonald, that we were sent there to keep the peace. They replied that they never broke the peace, and would not reason with us; but told us to turn back at once, and that they would be augmented in numbers by 350 men more in a very short time, that their own policeman was there, and that he was a good man and no more required. They thereupon asked Constable Maclaren whether they ever did anything, and he answered that they did not. I said that we wished to go to the hotel, and asked them to allow us to go there. They said "No," that the hotel keeper was warned not to allow us inside his door, and they thereupon came upon us in a rush and said that they were seeing us so few, that it was not worth their while to handle us roughly, and they then forced us back. I then got a kick on the back of my left leg, just above the knee.

At this time a cart came up to us, going towards Uig. They said "This is a cart they had," and they thereupon seized hold of the horse's head. We said to them to leave the man and horse, that we had nothing to do with him. Some of them apparently knew the man, after looking sharply into his face, and they allowed the man to proceed on towards Uig.

They then drove us before them for about four-and-a-half miles, shoving and pushing us on. They also kicked some of us, and I got a blow in the small of the back from some hard blunt instrument.

When passing Earlish, the crowd increased. Those that joined at this place had short sticks which they flourished several times above my head, but they did not strike me with these.

They were threatening me most fearfully, and they were cursing and swearing at me in a frightful manner. They were also cheering and hooting at the pitch of their voices, and saying that should Major Fraser be there, he would be driven back along with us. They were highly excited. They said that they would resist 5,000 policemen, and that should that number come they might bring their coffins with them. They also said that it was a mercy for us that it was not to-morrow we came, adding that they had a telegram from Portree, giving them notice that we were going there. They brought P.C. Maclaren in the crowd along with them, but he did not come near us. Sergeants Boyd and Henderson, I believe, spoke to and shook hands with P.C. Maclaren, but had no conversation with him.

On arriving at Glenhinsdale Bridge they formed a circle round us, and asked what business had we there, and who sent us. I told them that we were ordered there, and they then asked us whether we had any summonses. I said no, that we had not. They asked me through a spokesman whether I would promise not to go back to Uig again. I said I would promise no such thing. They then said we should be thankful that they did not draw blood, whereupon I told them we were thankful. They said that if the Valtos men were there that we would not walk back. They threatened to send us all the way to Portree, adding that they would get plenty assistance on the road, and also in Portree.

I did not know any of them; but Inspector Macdonald recognized two, named respectively, Martin Martin and John Campbell. Constable Maclaren will be able to tell the names of all or almost all of them. He wired to Inspector MacDonald, after we left Portree for Uig, that people very excited and determined to resist; and he also wrote by post that the people had intimation that we were marching for Uig, and that they were gathering at the time he wrote to meet us. He also suggested to Inspector MacDonald in that letter to leave the men here, but that he himself might go to Uig without angering the people. This note was written hurriedly by P.C. Maclaren in pencil. This letter was given to the Procurator-Fiscal; on seeing it Mr. Gillanders drove down with two machines to meet us, being sure that we were turned back. He met us about four miles from Portree.

When returning at Kensaleyre, which is about seven miles from Portree, we heard a horn blowing as we were passing the Post Office there, and on coming to the village at Kensaleyre a number of men ran out of a house near the inn and kept walking alongside of us, but stood at a road leading off the main road at the inn.

After passing on about fifty yards they commenced to hoot us.

We arrived in Portree about half past ten o'clock.

The day and night were very stormy, with rain and high wind. We were all wet to the skin. We are all quite tired and done up.

The Inspector got a telegraph clerk to receive a message for you, which was despatched at 2.40 this morning. The Inspector thinks that the sooner the men are withdrawn the better, as the people will be excited.

Being quite done up and tired, I got Mr. Gillanders to write this report for me.

CROFTERS.

SIR, .

Constabulary Office, Portree, November 3, 1884.

I RECEIVED your telegram at 8.40 a.m. to-day. I saw the sheriff and fiscal, and also Mr. MacDonald, the factor, regarding getting quarters for 40 men, each of whom told me that the only accommodation that could be obtained is the hotels; and there is no place that could be converted into barracks. The Skye Gathering Hall is unoccupied, but there is no fire-place in it, but in a room adjoining it there is a fire-place. There are no beds or any furniture in it.

There is a space between the prison and back of the county buildings, in the prison yard, where a wooden erection might be made that would accommodate a good number of men, if they could be made comfortable.

Mr. Ross, of the Royal Hotel, would supply two conveyances that would carry 20 men, but he cannot supply more. He said if anything should happen to the conveyances, horses, and drivers, that he would require to be paid for it, and said that he got word from Uig on Saturday, that if his conveyance had gone to Uig with the police that it would have been smashed to pieces. He is sure that something would be done to the conveyances after this, if they will be used to carry the police.

I did not ask Mr. Macinnes, of the Portree Hotel, regarding conveyances. He being in favour of the crofters would tell them everything he would hear. Mr. Machennan, the procurator fiscal, considered it unwise to speak to him, but says that he has two conveyances that would carry nearly 20 men, and that he, the Procurator-Fiscal, will force him to give them if required. Mr. Macinnes and Mr. Neish, the postmaster here, are said to be very great friends, and I was afraid of mentioning the above circumstance in the telegram to you to-day. The police are watched, and there were several telegrams sent to Uig on Thursday regarding their going there; one of which, I understand, was advising the people to turn the police back, but who sent these telegrams is not known, as they are "from Portree Crofters."

I was informed at 4 p.m. to-day by Mr. Machennan, Procurator-Fiscal, that he saw Dr. Matheson, who was last night at Uig, that the doctor told him that he slept in Uig Inn, and at a quarter to 12 p.m. last night he was awakened by sounds similar to the whistle of a steamer, that he thought a steamer was in the bay, and rose to his bedroom window, and then saw the people on the road, and coming along the road; that there were hundreds of them, the road being covered with them for a long distance, and they were armed with sticks; that the Kilmuir people had a watch on the top of a rock in case a steamer would go into Staffin Bay, and that yesterday they had a small party watching the road in case the Procurator-Fiscal would go to Uig, as they were determined to turn him back. Mr. Machennan, Procurator-Fiscal, said that I could rely on this information, and I then wired it briefly to you.

The postmasters here and at Uig are greatly in favour of the crofters; and by telegraphing anything to P.C. Maclaren, the crofters might here of it, and lead them to drive him away out of the place. In the forenoon to-day I made the Inspector wire to P.C. Maclaren as follows: "Wire what is doing to-day." P.C. Maclaren replied, and I wired his reply to you. The Procurator-Fiscal will not venture to take him up here for precognition for some time yet, as it would be the means of sending him off.

The Procurator-Fiscal has reported the case to Crown Counsel, and also to the Lord Advocate, who wired for a copy of the Precognition.

The people in the village here appears to be dissatisfied at the police being left here; and it is rumoured among them that there are 50 policemen coming to-morrow. I have just heard that the people are quite ready and determined to resist any body of police, should they be 300 strong. At this moment I am told that hundreds of the people were, at 2 a.m. to-day, at Henisdale Bridge, with clubs and other weapons waiting any person that might go in connexion with the law; it did not matter who it might be. This information was brought to the village by a crofter's son from Glenhenisdale, who is a clerk in Mr. MacDonald's office; and he told that he saw them at the bridge in the morning, when on his way to Portree.

I have just received your memorandum of 2nd current, and intimated to the inspector, sergeants, and constables how sorry you are for the treatment each received, and all are thanking you for your kindness.

The men are in plain clothes, their uniforms having been quite wet, some of which is not entirely dry yet. They are all kept closely in the Court House during the day.

The Inspector is busy endeavouring to obtain all information possible for me to write you.

The men's health is good. The Inspector is not clear of the last outrage that was committed on him; his legs are still swelling. I was not myself feeling strong for sometime before coming here, but I hope that the weakness I feel will pass away. I thought I would be the better of the journey, and trust it may turn so.

UIG CROFTERS.

Constabulary Office, Portree,
November 2, 1884.

SIR,

I BEG to report that, by instructions from Superintendent Aitchison, who landed here with one sergeant and four constables from Inverness on the evening of Wednesday, the 29th October 1884. I proceeded about 3 p.m. on Thursday, the 30th October 1884, accompanied by Superintendent Aitchison, Sergeants Boyd, Dunvegan, and Henderson, Beaully, and Constables Fraser, Broadford, Chisholm, Isleornsay, Macleod, Fraser, and Tait, Inverness, to Uig, to do special duty there. We hired, but owing to the excited state of the country, the hotel keepers, Donald Macinnes, Portree Hotel, and Lachlan Ross, Royal Hotel, would only give us the hires to Glenhenisdale, which is about five miles from Uig, as they were afraid of getting their conveyances broken if they drove us to Uig.

When we arrived at Glenhenisdale Bridge, and seeing that there was no person to be seen, the drivers drove us two miles further on, to a place called Cuidrach, within three miles of Uig. The conveyances then turned back to Portree, and we proceeded on, under a heavy pour of rain, which had continued from the time we left Portree till we reached Uig. As we were within two hundred yards of the hotel at Uig, occupied by James Urquhart, residing there, we were met by a crowd of people, numbering about two hundred, between men and boys. This would be about 6 p.m., and getting dark. They appeared to be waiting us, and whenever they saw us they gave a yell that sounded something fearful in the Glen, and marched to meet us, yelling and cheering, shouting and whistling, as they were approaching us. We kept going on towards them until we met, face to face, and had to halt. They kept up a ringing cheer, and yelling for about three minutes after we stood there, asking us very wildly, and with fierce oaths, where were we going, what took us here, who sent us here, and what were our reasons for coming here? Superintendent Aitchison told them that we had come to keep the peace. They immediately began yelling and cheering, saying that peace was not required, that they did not break the law, and if they did that they had a policeman of their own with them, with whom they would willingly go to Portree, to be punished, if required. I tried to reason with them, but all to no purpose.

I saw P.C. Maclaren, Uig, in the crowd. I did not speak to him. The crowd then made a rush from behind, cursing and swearing, yelling and shouting, and closing the front rank on us, saying that if we did not return immediately they would split our heads. I was caught in the crush, and was pushed backwards for a distance of ten or twelve yards. I caught hold of some of the people, or I would have been trampled under their feet. I was then caught hold of, twisted round, and shoved on. I saw the Superintendent and the rest of the men shoved on likewise. As we were being pushed, shoved, and hurried on back to Portree, I heard orders given in the crowd for messengers to run towards Earlish, which township we were approaching, to call out the people there to help them in driving the dogs, as they called us, and such messengers ran on before us. I was trying to speak to the crowd, as we were shoved along, telling them to let us alone now, and we would go ourselves. The Superintendent and I kept behind the men, in front of the crowd, for the first part of the road, receiving the most cruel treatment, by being thumped and pushed as we were hurried along.

When passing Earlish aforesaid, I saw a number of the people there joining the crowd, each armed with a stick. I did not see any sticks with any in the crowd that came from Uig.

When these joined them their threats became fearful, wanting to strip us all of our clothing and shoes, and to drive us naked and bare-footed on along the road to Portree, but fortunately they did not do this.

When we came to Glenhenisdale Bridge, which is in the march between Major Fraser and Lord Macdonald, they halted, forming a ring about us, for causing us to explain what was our mission to Uig, and who sent us, and if we did not give them satisfactory answers, they were determined to drive us, one by one, over the bridge. This bridge is an iron one, and about 20 feet high. We told them that we were sent there to keep the peace, and advising them to keep within the bounds of the law. This did not satisfy them, and then they wanted to get us to swear that we would never come back again. We would not do this for them, whereupon they stared at us, broke open the ring they had formed into, letting us pass through, saying that we were now spotted, and if we did return again we would not go back alive; that we might bring our coffins along with us, and with one ringing cheer, they saw us past the bridge.

When the crowd formed the ring, I saw P.C. Maclaren with them. I did not speak to him, as I was afraid he might be driven on along with us. Some in the crowd pointed to him, saying "That's our policeman, we brought him here with us to night, " we will bring him back safe, and take care of him."

I identified two of the ringleaders in the crowd when they met us at Uig, viz.: Martin Martin, now or lately coachman with James Urquhart, innkeeper, Uig, and John Campbell, crofter, Idrigill, and before they parted with us at the said bridge

I saw Myles Macinnes, labourer, residing at Idrigill, all in the parish of Snizort, among them.

When we got over the bridge, we came on towards Portree, and when passing at Kensaleyre, we heard a horn blowing. We thought we were to be attacked again. We observed a number of people coming out of a house there, and following us a distance of about 200 yards, when they stood and began hooting us, but came no farther. We kept on under a drenching rain, and wet to the skin, until we came within four miles of Portree, when we were met by Mr. Murdo Gillanders, Depute Procurator-Fiscal, with two conveyances he brought from Portree to meet us, just in time, for the Superintendent and I were giving up with fatigue, from the ill-treatment we received from the crowd. We arrived at Portree shortly before 11 p.m.

I feel very much bruised, and it is with difficulty I can move about with the pain in my legs. They are swollen from my ankles up to my thighs. I got two severe blows on the back, which is still painful.

I never recovered from the like ill-usage I received at Glendale in February of 1883.

I observed, as we were driven along by the crowd, several sticks raised above the Superintendent's head, with threats to smash his head, but I did not see him struck by any of the sticks. I heard several voices in the crowd repeatedly saying to the ring-leaders not to lay hands or sticks at us, but to drive us along at a good pace. I also heard them saying that they had several telegrams from Portree that day, intimating to them our arrival, and that it was a good thing for us that the Eastside people did not come, or else they would not allow us away as they had done.

I have, &c.

LETTER from WILLIAM IVORY, Esq., Sheriff of Inverness-shire, to the LORD ADVOCATE.

DEAR LORD ADVOCATE,

Edinburgh, November 2, 1884.

I ENCLOSE a letter which I have received from Sheriff Speirs in regard to the deforcement of the police at Uig on Thursday last. Your Lordship will observe from it, that he is of opinion that in the present disturbed state of Skye it is necessary to have a gunboat and marines, or a couple or more companies of soldiers stationed in the island.

Your Lordship will also have received copy of a minute of a meeting of the Police Committee at which they "resolved to apply to Government for a gunboat to be stationed at Portree or other port bordering on the disturbed districts, with such number of marines as will be sufficient not only to protect the police constables in the performance of their duty in preserving the peace, but to quell any riots with which the constables may be found unable to contend."

I not only approve of the above resolution, but am of opinion that the immediate despatch of a gunboat and marines to Skye is absolutely necessary to protect the police and assist them in protecting the property and persons of the lieges in that island.

The Chief Constable and Police Committee have done their utmost to meet the emergency by arranging for the despatch to Skye of as many constables as can be spared from the force, and by supplying them with the revolvers which have recently been furnished for their use by the Government. The Chief Constable informs me that he is "completing arrangements for sending as many additional men to Skye as possible, and hopes to have at least from 40 to 45 there by Wednesday next, all of whom will be armed with revolvers."

I trust that your Lordship will approve of these arrangements, and that the Government will see the necessity of at once sending a gunboat and marines to Skye.

The report by the Chief Constable (dated 31st October 1884) to the Police Subcommittee, with telegram from Superintendent Aitchison in regard to the deforcement of himself and his men at Uig, has been forwarded by the Chief Constable to the Home Secretary.

I remain, &c.

No. 11.

MEMORANDUM on the DISTURBED STATE and LAWLESSNESS in the ISLAND of SKYE, in the County of Inverness, showing the necessity of the Central Government giving military or naval aid to protect the Police in enforcing the law and maintaining order in said island.

November 9, 1884.

A MASS meeting of the people of Kilmuir was to assemble near Quiaraing on Friday 31st October last, and in consequence of threats said to have been made by the crofters against Mr. Alexander Macleod, farmer, Scudaburgh; James Urquhart, farmer and innkeeper, Uig; and John Mackenzie, manager, Uig Torver, for statements reported to have been made by them in connexion with the evidence taken by the Crofters Commission, they were to be asked to attend said meeting, and in the event of their declining, they were to be taken by force. These three men being tenants of Major Fraser, he on their behalf applied to the Police Committee of the county for special police protection.

The police authority having had the like information in police reports, deemed it their duty to grant Major Fraser's request, and directed the Chief Constable to send six additional constables to Uig and Kilmuir to strengthen and support the three constables stationed there, and give special protection to the three men referred to.

Accordingly, six men were sent under Superintendent Aitchison who, accompanied by Inspector Macdonald and two men of the Skye division, proceeded to Uig on Thursday 30th October.

The police were met near Uig by a large mob of the people of the district, assaulted, and forcibly driven back.

The people of Kilmuir have since turned out and held possession of the district, determined to resist the police entering or going among them.

They have for the past week been assembled in hundreds, day and night armed with sticks for the purpose of assaulting an expected body of police, and declare that they will attack any number of constables so long as soldiers are not sent.

At present a reign of terror exists in the district, and nothing short of Government aid or protection for the police in restoring order and maintaining the law will suffice.

About two years ago the police authorities with the approval of the Secretary of State more than doubled their police force in the hope of being able to carry out the law, but as stated herein have been unable to do so, and jointly with the sheriff are obliged to apply for Government assistance.

As no accommodation can be got for the police nor means of conveyance through the island, the police authority have chartered a steamer for that purpose.

A force of 50 constables including those presently stationed in Skye has been made available for the enforcement of law and restoring order in the island, under the Government protection.

From Superintendent AITCHISON, Inverness, to the CHIEF CONSTABLE in London.

Inspector wired great excitement prevailing yesterday at Uig. People going about in great numbers about one in the morning, waiting for receiving police; great meeting held at top of Rha yesterday evening, watchmen posted all over Kilmuir. Inspector reports that, whatever number of police may go, they would require to be well protected by military, otherwise their coming would be of no avail; the Crofters are so determined that they would sooner die than yield to the police. The agitation throughout the whole island is in highest degree, and undoubtedly all would turn out. No fresh occurrences committed.

R. G. C. HAMILTON

FORM of LETTER appointing Visitors of Convict Prisons in Ireland, and containing Instructions as to their Duties.

Dublin Castle, March 188 .

I AM directed by the Lord Lieutenant to acquaint you that His Excellency has appointed you to the office of Visitor to Her Majesty's Convict Prison at for the twelve months ensuing from the 1st proximo.

The appointment of Visitors to Convict Prisons is an arrangement which the Government have adopted, in order to give effect to a recommendation, in which His Excellency entirely concurs, made by the Royal Commission on the Penal Servitude Acts in the Report, a copy of which accompanies this letter, and in paragraph 167 of the Report you will find set forth the general objects which such visitation is intended to fulfil.

Your duty accordingly will be, from time to time, as you may find expedient, to visit the prisons, and to make inquiry as to the state of the prisoners, and discipline and condition of the prisons; but to abstain from giving any order, or interfering with the administration of the prisons, which, by statute, is vested exclusively in the General Prisons Board, subject to the control of the Lord Lieutenant.

A book will be kept in the prisons, in which you will insert such remarks or recommendations as you may desire to make; and whenever you consider it preferable, you will address a report to the Lord Lieutenant, who will immediately pay attention to it.

Your colleagues in the office, with respect to the prison, are

And I have to request that you will, at your earliest convenience, confer with them, in order to arrange such times and manner for the visitation of the prisons as you may think fit, either together or separately.

The Royal Commission on Prisons in Ireland which recently reported attaches great importance to the independent inspection of prisons, both convict and local. The Commissioners think that the visits by the Visitors ought to be frequent, and their inspections searching and thorough, and they suggest that the Lord Lieutenant should, in future, require from the Visitors, once in every year, a full report in writing, as to the condition and discipline of the prison to which they are appointed. In this opinion His Excellency concurs; and requests, therefore, that at the end of your term of office, you will furnish, in conjunction with your colleagues, a report in accordance therewith.

The General Prisons Board are desirous and will be ready in every way to co-operate with you, and the Governors and other officials will have instructions that every facility shall be provided, and every courtesy shown, and free access will be given to all prisoners and all parts of the prisons; and all books will be open to your inspection at all reasonable hours.

I have to request you will be good enough to take this communication with you on the occasion of your first visit to the prisons, in order to prevent the possibility of any unauthorised person obtaining an entry into the prison by pretending to be a Visitor.

I have the honour to be,

Your obedient servant,

MEMORANDUM on a BILL to amend the SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE ACT (IRELAND), in reference to the Provisions thereof which relate to the PROBATE DIVISION of that COURT.—Prepared by the Judge of the Division.

MORE property is administered under the Orders and Acts of the Court of Probate, i.e., of the Judge and Principal and District Registrars of that Court, than under all the other ordinary Courts of Ireland together. These Orders and Acts require not only intelligence, but minute accuracy and very special knowledge, and are, for the most part, made and done ex parte at the instance of some one person interested in the property, in the absence of all others. Frequently these Orders and Acts involve difficulties which in ex parte proceedings may be easily overlooked, and which, when observed, demand for their solution considerable knowledge of law, intimate familiarity with the indispensable peculiarities of Probate practice, and some experience in the construction of writings.

It is obvious that the administration of this property ought to rest upon a secure basis, and that a system tried and proved to be satisfactory in Ireland and England ought not to be disturbed in Ireland unless it can be shown with certainty that the substituted system will be, if not superior, at least as safe, as that which has been tested by experience.

The Bill to amend the Supreme Court of Judicature Act (Ireland) proposes two important changes in the existing Probate system, viz. :—1. The abolition of a special Probate Judge, and, 2, the abolition of the existing District Registrars of the Court. It is convenient to observe upon the second proposal in the first instance.

PART I.

The District Registries are framed on the same lines and conducted on the same principles as those in England. The system has been successful. It WORKS EXTREMELY WELL, is the opinion of the Treasury Remembrancer,* given in a confidential report presented to the late Lord Chancellor of Ireland.

The Bill proposes that in Ireland this tried and successful system shall be changed. The same system in England is unquestioned. The duties of the District Registrars are to be transferred to the Clerks of the Peace and Crown of the counties. The Probate Act of 1857, sect. xxii., had enacted that Clerks of the Peace should be appointed District Registrars, either immediately or on the occurrence of a vacancy in the office ; but in the year 1859, on reconsideration, sideration, this provision was deemed unwise, and it was repealed by the 22 & 23 Vict. c. xxxi., s. 5, with the concurrence of the sagacious and experienced judge then presiding in the Court of Probate, who thought it important that the unity of the staff of the Probate Court should not be broken by any foreign element. Is the present proposal made under any authoritative advice or for any sufficient reasons? Has it been approved of by the Judges, Registrars, or District Registrars of the Probate Courts of Ireland or of England? The Probate Judge in Ireland, notwithstanding distinct promises by the late Lord Chancellor and the late Chief Secretary for Ireland, has not been consulted. What persons could be so competent to advise as the Judges and Officers of the Irish and English Courts? Nam et prius quam incipias consulto. Of course Government might accept or reject the advice as it thought fit. Are there good reasons for this proposal, of a legal or economic character? If so, they would be good reasons for England as well as for Ireland. Is it possible that Ireland, because it is only Ireland, is selected as a suitable subject for an experiment?

The substance of the new scheme is a District Registry in each county of Ireland, and a District Registrar for each county in the person of the Clerk of the Peace and Crown, or some temporary officer. This principle, if fully carried out, will give District Registries to Wicklow and Kildare, and so there will be 30 or 31 District Registrars. Are there economical reasons for this proposal? "Mr. Chancellor of the Exchequer" is on the back of the Bill. At present the profits of the six District Registries, in which the officers are paid by salaries, largely exceed the expenses. In 1884 the fees were 7,456 £.; the sum paid for salaries to the District Registrars and their clerks was 3,505 £., leaving a net profit to the Treasury of 3,951 £. The details will be found in the Appendix to this Paper, B. The officers of the remaining five District Registries are paid by fees, and these Registries are not a source of profit or loss to the Treasury; but if the salary system was extended to Kilkenny Registry, and to Mullingar united to Cavan, as has been suggested by the Judge, those Registries also would be sources of considerable profit. If 30 several Registries shall be established, the total of expenses will be increased, and the total of profits of District Registries will not be increased, except in rare cases of preference by a suitor of the local to the Principal Registry; a preference which will not bring any gain to the Treasury. The Bill seems to ignore the necessity of special clerks to be paid by salaries, and the certainty that when the Bill, if it shall pass, comes to be worked, considerable augmentations of salary will have to be made to the Clerks of the Peace and Crown. The District Registrar in the smallest county could not carry on the work without the aid of a specially instructed clerk. A note of the duties of District Registrars will be found in the Appendix A. Take the case of Belfast Registry as an illustration. The staff of that Registry is composed of the able and experienced Registrar, four permanent clerks, and one temporary clerk. These six officers give their whole time to official work, and the temporary clerk was allowed by the Treasury only because the business could not otherwise be done. Well, the Bill proposes to dissolve this excellent Registry, and to substitute an Antrim Registry in Belfast, and a Down Registry in Downpatrick. The Clerks of the Crown and Peace would find it impossible to work the two Registries with three clerks each, even were they to give their whole time to the Probate business, as the present District Registrar at Belfast does. But, of course, the new Registrars could only give a portion of their time to their Probate business, and the withdrawal of their personal supervision from the grants, assuming their competency, would involve the costs of clerks of high position and acquirements. New costly offices with strong rooms, safes, &c., will have to be provided in some of the new Registries, and throughout Ireland many of the present official expenses will be multiplied.

During the last six years, by the direction of the Judge, and with the sanction of the Treasury, all the District Registries have been from time to time inspected by the Chief Registrar with beneficial results; defects have been supplied, errors corrected, diligence encouraged, uniformity established and enforced. These inspections ought to be continued, and should be made more frequently if the Registries were increased in number, and the Registrars persons without special training or experience. But the inspection of some 30 Registries, if only visited every second year, would seriously interfere with the primary duties of the Chief Registrar, and be attended with considerable expense. Can it be intended that that under this Bill, the District Registrars are to be withdrawn from the supreme control of a Judge, or from direct dependence on the principal Registry? The control and the dependence are essential, not to the convenience only, but to the safety of the Probate system. Another element of expense in connection with the proposed change must be noticed, viz., compensation to clerks now employed in the District Registries. This is not noticed in the Bill, and may have been overlooked; but it cannot be intended to deprive a number of respectable men who, for many years, have given their whole time to the public service for salaries vastly inferior to those paid in the English Registries, whenever a District Registrar may happen to die or resign, of their only means of living, without reasonable substantial compensation. At present these clerks can only be removed by the Judge or with his sanction, and have, therefore, a safe tenure during good conduct. It has been suggested that the multiplication of District Registries, and the placing them under the management of the Clerks of the Crown and Peace, might induce or compel people not to deal with assets without a grant of probate or administration, and so increase revenue. Such a result is not probable. Omissions to administer are generally the result of a wish to evade payment of fees and stamps. Since 1857, the facilities for administration have been promoted by postal and railway improvements, and are adequate for the wants of all who desire a Grant. The Bill will do little in this direction. Take the proposed Registry at Downpatrick as an illustration. It is more convenient for the great majority of the people of Down to transact business at Belfast than at Downpatrick; and it must be remembered that a great deal of the work of the large Registries is carried on by correspondence, for which a small fee to the District Registrar has been recognised by the Treasury. The new District Registrars will not have any personal motive to hunt up defaulting next-of-kin and legatees. To do so would increase their labours, and, as they are not to receive fees, without any remuneration. It might be made the duty of the Clerks of the Crown to make inquiries in their counties, and inform the Inland Revenue Officers—a duty not connected with those of District Registrars. A note on this subject will be found in the Appendix C.

These financial considerations, however, are of secondary importance as compared with the necessity of securing, as far as possible, that the proper grant of assets shall be made to the person legally entitled to receive it. The extent of this property has been already noticed. These Grants are judgments in rem, binding ubique, until revoked. An Irish Grant, if the deceased had assets in England, can be turned into an English Grant by the mere administrative act of a clerk at Somerset House resealing the Irish parchment, and vice versâ. It will be prudent for English people to seek the repeal of this resealing practice, if the secure system which now obtains uniformly in England and Ireland is to be superseded by the proposed experiment.

Everyone in any degree competent to form a sound opinion upon legal question, may see by a glance at the Index of such a Book as "Williams on Executors," the difficulties which occur as to the proper contents of Grants, and the proper persons to be Grantees. Such questions frequently arise, and may arise at any moment in any county of Ireland. Oversights and mistakes lead to expense, confusion, and loss of property. Is it alleged, has it been suggested, that the existing system of competent District Registrars, working in harmony with the assistance of the principal Registrars, under the control of an individual Judge, does not in Ireland, as in England, afford satisfactory security against such mistakes? Is it alleged, has it been suggested, that the change proposed by the Bill will afford increased security against such errors and their consequences? No such suggestion is to be found in Mr. Holmes' Paper, to which reference has been made.

One main cause of the satisfactory manner in which the District Registries in general are conducted, is the special knowledge of the Registrars. For this, previous special training is desirable, and is secured when clerks of some standing in the principal Registry are nominated to the office. It is also necessary that the work of each Registrar should be sufficiently large to afford him an opportunity of learning his lesson experimentally, and that no other duties should interfere with the discharge of his Probate duties; and, accordingly, under the present law and system, District Registrars must discharge their duties in person, and must attend daily at their offices. Is this wholesome and beneficial provision to be repealed, and are the new District

Registrars to be allowed to attend when they please? Some Clerks of the Peace in Ireland reside at a distance from the county town. Are the authority and control over the District Registrars which exist under the Probate Acts to be repealed or to continue? It would be a very strong presumption to make that the necessity of such control would cease because the number of District Registrars was trebled! Some years ago, a respectable, intelligent, educated man, under special circumstances, was nominated to a small District Registry. He had no previous training, and the work was not large enough to engage his mind or instruct him practically. From the first the work was badly done; and after a time he was dismissed by the Judge, with the sanction of the then Lord Chancellor of Ireland.

If, indeed, it be assumed that the only object of requiring a grant of assets is the collection of fees and stamp duties, of course any clerk provided with two forms, one for all cases of intestacy, and one for all cases of wills, and competent to work a sum in the rule of three, would be a fully qualified District Registrar, as competent as he would be to sell stamps and parchments across a counter; but if he is to be an agent for the administration of Probate Law, he must be competent for something more—fit to discharge duties which the present District Registrars, some Barristers, some Solicitors, and the rest trained either in the Principal Registry or the old Ecclesiastical Courts, are not entrusted to do, save under the supervision and with the assistance of the Principal Registrar, and subject to the authoritative control of an individual Judge. The duties of the Judge and the Chief Registrars, in relation to the District Registrars, are essential to the safe working of the system. But the proposed increase in the number of the District Registrars would increase the difficulty of the discharge of these duties. Some persons do not understand the paramount importance of the connection between the Principal and District Registries; a glance at the Appendix (A.) may convince them that the connection is vital to the system. How without it would uniformity of practice be maintained? and on this uniformity rights of property depend.

It is fit to observe, that experience proves—what indeed was, a priori, probable—that Probate business is best done in large District Registries. Nothing is to be desired as regards the Registries at Belfast, Cork, and Londonderry. The state of the small Registries, such for instance as Cavan and Ballina, is not so satisfactory. What will be the character of the petty Registries proposed to be established at Longford, Tullamore, Carlow, Fermanagh, &c., &c.?

A suggestion has been made, that there is no reason why a District Registrar, assuming him to be a thoroughly competent person, should be attached to or under the control of the Court. Can it safely be assumed that every one of the proposed thirty District Registrars will be thoroughly competent persons? That every one of them will be faultless? If this assumption was conceded, still connection with the Principal Registry, from the very nature of the case, is absolutely essential to the Probate system, and the Principal and District Registries would not work without a presiding Judge. Take an illustration. A case in which absent minors were interested was heard in a County Court; the parties before the Court entered into a consent, and probably the notice of the Judge was not directed to the matter. But the Clerk of the Crown and Peace, whose infallibility is to be assumed, drew up and certified a decree for a joint Grant to one of the executors named in a will, and to another person not named in the will at all. The Clerk of the Peace and Crown, fortunately, had no power to draw the Grant, and the matter was brought before the Judge, who varied the decree; but if the Clerk of the Crown and Peace had been also a District Registrar, he would have drawn up a Grant, which would have been simply void, and might have caused confusion and loss! The cases of M'INERNEY and BELL, in the fifth volume "Irish Law Reports," pages 553 and 409, may interest a lawyer!

PART II.

It is not necessary to say much upon the other topic mentioned at the commencement of this Paper, viz., the proposed abolition of a special Probate Judge. Opinions may be divided on the questions, Whether a Probate Division should be given up in Ireland, and retained in England? Whether Jury Trials of Probate and Divorce cases should be placed in the general Nisi Prius list of the Queen's Bench Division, or, as in England, reserved for a Probate Judge?

Whether

Whether hearings of such actions, without a jury, should be committed to the Judges of the Queen's Bench Division? Arguments have been urged for removing Jury cases from the exclusive jurisdiction of any one Judge; but the removal would increase costs in country cases, and for Hearings without a Jury, a Judge of the Chancery Division would seem a more satisfactory tribunal, if the Probate Division should be abolished. The grave objection to the abolition of a special Probate Judge lies in the proposed transfer from a single Judge to ten Judges of all the non-contentious and common form business of the Probate Division, of all the motion, and especially the ex parte motion, business of the Court, and of the duty of directing and governing the Officers of the Principal and District Registries. The difficulties and responsibilities involved in Common Form business, as defined in the Probate Act, 1857, exceed those of Jury Trials; more property depends on its due administration; and it must be borne in mind that errors at Jury Trials are generally noticed by counsel, and can be corrected at the time, or if necessary by an appeal.

The practice of the Court in relation to ex parte motions illustrates the caution necessarily observed. A document, called a Motion Paper, stating briefly the purpose of the application, and referring to the documents and affidavits relied on, must be lodged in the office. A Registrar then peruses and notes the Motion Paper. All the papers are then sent to the Judge, who reads them, and considers the Registrar's notes. On the day for hearing Motions, the Registrar attends the Judge first in Chamber, and then in Court, when the ex parte Motion is argued by counsel. Notwithstanding all this preliminary care, the Judge is sometimes obliged to reserve his decision, in order to consider further the construction of documents, the effect of affidavits, or the bearing of technical rules of Probate Law and Practice. This system is uniform in England and Ireland; and the Judges recognise these precautions as necessary for the safe administration of this non-contentious business. If this Common Form work shall be distributed amongst the ten Judges of the Queen's Bench Division, it will be found impossible to continue this hitherto successful practice; and one-tenth share of the Common Form business of the Irish Court is too limited in extent to enable a Judge to acquire that experimental knowledge, without which he must be incompetent for the discharge of his duty. The business of the Court in relation to Motions on Notice, is somewhat less difficult and responsible; but for this, also, experimental knowledge is essential, a knowledge which should embrace not only all the details of Probate Law, but of the Practice of the Court, and of the Principal and District Registries.

It has been mentioned that a Registrar attends the Judge in Chamber. On such occasions the Judge is consulted as to any matters which may require his directions in relation to the Principal or District Registries, and questions of difficulty referred by the District Registrars are brought under his consideration. Matters of a pressing character arise from time to time in the Division, and the Judge is consulted at his residence by a Registrar. It has been found necessary that a vigilant and authoritative control should be exercised over District Registries. This will be, a fortiori, necessary if the number of District Registries shall be increased from 11 to 30, but this responsible duty could not be well discharged by a multitude of judges. If, as provided by the Judicature Act, 1877, the Probate Division shall be preserved, it will be well; if not, if the Division must be abolished, and jury trials must be remitted to the general Nisi Prius List, then let all the duties of the Judge of the Court of Probate, except those jury trials, together with Divorce and Admiralty business, be assigned to some single judge attached to the Chancery Division. Thus, without interfering with the economical objects of the Bill, a safe and successful system, substantially uniform in England and Ireland, may be maintained for the administration of the large property dependent on Probate Law and Practice.

This Paper has not been prepared from any personal motive; the object is the security of property in Ireland. It has been written, not in the interest of the few, but of the many. The small farmer, holding some 20 acres of land, and the small trader, with some 200 £ lodged in a bank, are as much interested as the landlord and the merchant in the subject; nay, mistakes are more frequent in the Wills of the poor than of the rich, and the costs sometimes involved in correcting mistakes may be unimportant to the rich man, and serious to the poor.

APPENDIX.

STATEMENT as to some of the DUTIES of the DISTRICT REGISTRARS, prepared by the PRINCIPAL REGISTRAR.

THE District Registrar must, on every application for a Grant of Probate or Administration, peruse all the papers. In Probate cases he must examine the original Will, and note alterations, erasures, and interlineations, and require affidavits in explanation thereof; he must examine the attestation clause, and, when necessary, obtain an affidavit as to due execution. In Intestacy cases he sees that all parties, having a right to the Grant in priority to the applicant, are cleared off, and that proper security is given. He has power to issue Grants to Creditors, Grants de bonis non, and special Grants of every description. Solicitors are not obliged to attend at the District Registry in person, as in the Principal Registry; and a great portion of the business is transacted by correspondence, which frequently involves numerous letters and enquiries.

The District Registrar, having searched his books for unproved Wills, prior Applications, and Caveats, sends notice of every application for a Grant by next post to Principal Registrars, stating the particulars of the title, for the purpose of obtaining the requisite certificate from Principal Registry, authorising him to issue the Grant. He then prepares the Grant, and, when sealed, forwards an abstract of it, called a Calendar, to the Principal Registry, in order that the particulars may appear in the General Index, which is in daily use and searched by the public.

The District Registrar must send to the Principal Registry, every fortnight, a copy of every Will proved, and every Grant issued during the period; and the salaried Registrars, lists of fees received in each case, with the stamps equivalent in value attached thereto, and cancelled by him (sic.). This secures the rights of the Inland Revenue.

The District Registrar receives personal applications, and prepares the necessary papers for a Grant, which, from the ignorance of the parties applying, frequently consume much time.

The District Registrar receives applications from the Supervisors of Inland Revenue under the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1881, and these involve generally a lengthened correspondence and a vast amount of trouble, the supervisors having no special training for the work.

The District Registrars receive and enter Caveats. They are applied to for Searches, Copies of Wills, Grants, and Affidavits, as well as Sealed and Certified Copies of Documents which can only be obtained in the District Registry.

NOTE as to Causes of LOSS of DUTIES.

1. THE impunity of offenders. This was brought under the notice of Lord Sherbrooke when Chancellor of the Exchequer.

2. The insufficiency or neglect of the provisions of the County Court Act, 1877, and Land Act, 1880, to secure the rights of the Crown when special administrators are appointed.

3. Some Banks pay out assets without an administration, upon a guarantee of indemnity.

— II. —

EXTRACT from the REPORT, dated April 1881, by Mr. R. W. A. Holmes, to the Lord Chancellor of Ireland, and the Presidents of the Common Law Divisions, on certain Offices not included in the Order of 20th December 1879.

DISTRICT REGISTRIES.

THERE are 11 District Registries specified in Schedule A. to "The Probates and Letters of Administration Act (Ireland), 1857," and by the 16th section of that Act "they are attached to and under the control of the Court of Probate." By section 17, the Lord Lieutenant in Council has power to add to or reduce their number and to change the Registry to a more convenient place within the District. Sections 50 to 57 inclusive deal with the jurisdiction and duties of District Registrars. By section 50, the jurisdiction of a District Registrar to grant Probates or Letters of Administration is limited to grants in Common Form, and to cases in which the testator or intestate had a fixed place of abode within his district. Section 52 requires him not to make grants in cases in which there is contention or in which it appears to him that Probate or Administration ought not to be granted in Common Form. Section 53 requires him to transmit to the Registrars of the Principal Registry a notice of every application which may be made to him for a Grant of Probate or Letters of Administration, and also requires that he shall not make any Grant in pursuance of any such application until he shall have received a certificate under the hand of one of the Registrars of the Principal Registry that no other application appears to have been made in respect of the goods of the same deceased person. The requirements of the last section are essential and would have to be observed under any system—i.e., as long as it is permissible to any person to apply to the Principal Registry for a Grant of Probate or Administration notwithstanding that the testator or intestate in respect of whose goods such application is made may have died within the limits of a District Registry; and there are obvious reasons why it should be always permissible (Sec. 63). If these requirements were not observed, it might often happen that two Grants in respect of the goods of the same deceased would be outstanding at the same time. Section 54 enables the District Registrar, when in doubt as to a Grant, to take the direction of the Judge, but as a matter of fact such direction is given by the Principal Registrars. So much as to the duties of the District Registrars.

With regard to their remuneration, some are paid by fees, others by salaries. The 115th section enables the Treasury "to order that the District Registrars, or any of them, shall be paid by salaries instead of fees, and to fix the salaries to be payable to them respectively." The District Registrars of Belfast, Cork, Londonderry, Limerick, Waterford, and Armagh, and their Clerks, are paid by salaries; while the District Registrars of Ballina, Tuam, Cavan, Kilkenny and Mullingar are still paid by fees, and are required by the same section to pay the salaries of their Clerks out of their fees, retaining the residue for their own use. The highest salary is that paid to the District Registrar of Belfast, who has 600 l. a year. The Registrars of Cork, Limerick, and Armagh, have 300 l. each, and the Registrars of Londonderry and Waterford, 250 l. each. The total cost of the six District Registries in respect of salaries and allowances appears by the Estimates for the current financial year to be 3,500 l.

I have now given a short sketch of the existing system, from which it will be seen that the District Registries are, by statute, attached to and under the control of the Court of Probate—a control which the present Judge has enforced by requiring the Chief Registrar of the Principal Registry to visit the District Registries periodically, and report concerning them to him. It will also be seen that under any system that may be devised it will be impossible to sever all connection between the Principal and District Registries. The present system works extremely well; but I think, if your Lordships were for the first time considering a plan for enabling persons to take out administration elsewhere in Ireland than at the Registry in Dublin, a more logical system than the present would be the result of your deliberations. The question naturally suggests itself, why should there not be an office in each county, at which applications for grants might be made, in respect of the assets of persons who had a fixed place of abode within the county at the time of their death. Why, for instance, should an executor be obliged to make application at Cavan when the testator had a fixed place of abode at Longford? The tendency of modern legislation is to equip each county with the most complete legal machinery in respect of all its criminal and civil business, nor is this a modern notion, but rather derived from the past. In theory, too, no objection could be urged against each county constituting in itself a complete autonomy, and, as a matter of fact, within the office of the Clerk of the Crown and Peace is transacted almost all the legal business of the county. The Clerk of the Crown and Peace acts now as the Registrar of the going judge of assize in criminal business, and as Registrar to the County Court Judge in both criminal and civil business, and in respect of the equity jurisdiction, now conferred upon the County Court Judges, discharges duties corresponding to those of the Chief Clerks in Chancery. Why should he not also be empowered to act as Registrar in respect of Probate business? Although, however, he has no power to issue grants of Probate or administration, he has even now duties to discharge, which are on the very fringe of matters testamentary. Under the 6th section of the Court of Probate Act (Ireland), 1859 (which was substituted for the 56th section of the Probates and Letters of Administration Act (Ireland) 1857), the County Court Judge is invested with "the contentious jurisdiction and authority of the Court of Probate in respect of questions as to the grant and revocation of Probate of the will or Letters of Administration of the effects of any deceased person," whose personalty is under 200 l. and real property under 300 l., and who had, at the time of his death, a fixed place of abode within the jurisdiction of the County Court Judge; and this jurisdiction has been extended by the County Officers and Courts (Ireland) Act, 1877, s. 46, to cases in which the personalty does not exceed 500 l. and the annual value of the lands does not exceed 30 l. On a decree being made by the County Court Judge, pursuant to these powers, the Clerk of the Crown and Peace is required, by the 59th section of the Act of 1857, to transmit to the District Registrar a certificate of such having been made, which certificate founds the authority of the District Registrar to issue the grant, just as a decree by the Judge of the Court of Probate is the authority for the Registrars of the Principal Registry to issue a grant. Now why should not the Clerk of the Crown and Peace, instead of transmitting the certificate to the District Registrar, be empowered to act upon the decree himself and issue the grant? He has acted as the officer in respect of the contentious jurisdiction conferred upon the County Court Judge, why should he not be allowed to act as the officer in respect of the non-contentious jurisdiction now exercised by the District Registrar? If you invest the judge with contentious, why not invest the officer with non-contentious jurisdiction? To my mind there is a logical sequence. If then there is no logical reason why in a contentious case before the County Court Judge the Clerk of the Crown and Peace should not act on the decree, and issue the grant, there is also no reason in the world why he should not take the place of the District Registrar in all cases. Then, again, under The Landlord and Tenant (Ireland) Act, 1870, s. 59, and The County Officers and Courts (Ireland) Act, 1877, s. 47, the County Court Judge has power to appoint a person to be an administrator limited to the purposes of these Acts, and any such limited administrator shall, for all the purposes of these Acts, represent the deceased as if the deceased had died intestate, and administration had been duly granted to such limited administrator. In all such cases the Clerk of the Crown and Peace of course records the orders. And again, under "An Act for the Relief of Widows and Children of Intestates where the personal estate is of small value," 36 & 37 Vict. c. 52 (amended by 38 & 39 Vict. c. 27), the Registrar of the County Court (i.e., in Ireland the the Clerk of the Crown and Peace, see Section 10, 14 & 15 Vict. c. 57), is required, when applied to in cases where the whole estate and effects of an intestate do not exceed 100 £., "to fill up the usual papers required by the Court of Probate to lead to a grant of administration," and to swear the applicant, and to attest the execution of the administration bond according to the practice of the Court of Probate and to transmit these papers by post to the Registrar of the Court of Probate, who is required to make out and seal the letters of administration and transmit them by post to the Clerk of the Crown and Peace, to be by him delivered to the party applying for the same. Surely it is too absurd to require the Clerk of the Crown and Peace, who must be a solicitor, and will usually be one of ability and eminence in his profession, to take every step except the final one of making out the letters of administration, which he could accomplish while the applicant was waiting in his office. There was some reason for taking this precaution when the Clerks of the Peace were neither required to be professional men nor to do their duties in person, but this reason can no longer exist when the Clerk of the Crown and Peace must not only be a solicitor, but, owing to the importance of the office and the amount of the salary, an eminent solicitor. And upon this point it is worthy of note that District Registrars of the Court of Probate need not apparently have any professional qualification—at least we may infer so from the fact that persons have been appointed who had no such qualification—although in the 25th section of the Act of 1857, which provides that no person shall be appointed a "Registrar" who shall not be a Barrister or a Solicitor—the word "Registrar" would seem to include "District Registrar," for if it does not, it is hard to see why it was provided by the amending Act of 1859 (22 & 23 Vic. cap. 31, sec. 5), that "Clerks having served five years in the Principal Registry of the Court of Probate shall be eligible to be appointed District Registrars of the said Court"—quite an unnecessary provision if there were no qualification for the office.

There can, however, be no second opinion that the Clerks of the Crown and Peace who, as Solicitors, possess one of the qualifications required for the Office of Chief Registrar of the Principal Registry would be thoroughly capable of performing the duties now discharged by the District Registrars. And apart from the great public convenience in having an office in each County for issuing Grants of Probate and Administration, I believe that the Revenue would be greatly benefited thereby. It is well known that the country has not derived from Stamp Duty on Grants of Probate and Administration the increased revenue which might have been anticipated from the considerable property which passed to the tenant farmers of Ireland under the provisions of the Land Act of 1870.* There must be a great number of cases in which persons succeeding to considerable interests never clothe themselves with the necessary representation. I believe that if there were an office in each county from which grants could issue, the detection of such cases would become comparatively easy. For instance, there might be some arrangement made under which the Clerks of the Crown and Peace, the Registrars of Births, Deaths, and Marriages, and the Inland Revenue could be placed in privity with each other, in relation to cases of deceased persons who had been possessed of substantial property in the county. The District Registrar of Births, Deaths, and Marriages might be required to ascertain from the person registering the death whether the deceased died testate or intestate, and to inform both the Inland Revenue Department and the Clerk of the Crown and Peace of the result of his inquiry. The Clerk of the Crown and Peace is now in a position by means of the General List of Jurors (which gives the place of abode, the title, quality, calling, or business, the annual value of rated property, and the place of property of every juror in the County), to inform the Inland Revenue Department of the death of any person possessed of property in the county; and, if he were also the Probate Officer, he would be able to state whether administration had been taken out of the goods of the deceased, and could also advise in what cases proceedings should be taken. Supplied with such trustworthy information, the Inland Revenue Department would be in a position to enforce the penalty against persons interfering in the management of the assets of deceased persons, without obtaining probate or letters of administration; and if their present powers are not sufficient for the purpose, it would be easy to increase them by fresh legislation. Indeed, with the almost complete legal machinery now provided for each county, no case proper for administration ought to escape the vigilance of that department.

Furthermore, the Clerk of the Crown and Peace, while acting as Chief Clerk in administration suits before the County Court Judge, would have many opportunities of requiring parties to clothe themselves with the necessary representation; and, in addition to the fact that the interests of the Revenue would be thus looked after, it would be greatly in the interests of the parties themselves, especially in poor cases, if the officer who required administration to be taken out was also the officer to issue the grant. It may be urged that if you cast these additional duties upon the Clerk of the Crown and Peace, it will be necessary to increase his staff, but there is ample provision for so doing in the County Courts Act, 1877. It may be further urged that so important an officer ought not to be under the control of the Court of Probate. Upon this point I would remind your Lordships that when the Judicature Bill was going through the House, it was seriously contemplated by the Legislature to abolish the Probate Court altogether, and I believe many eminent lawyers are of opinion that a separate Court for the trial of actions to establish wills is unnecessary. Now, if the Probate Division should ever be abolished, it is clear that the control of both the Principal and District Registries, i.e., of the non-contentious business, would be a question for consideration. A very probable solution of the difficulty would be to make them independent of any direct control, for the majority of applications for grants are of the simplest character, and, indeed, there is hardly one which could not be satisfactorily determined by persons possessed of the experience and ability of the present Chief Registrar and the late Principal Registrars, while the case of an application involving real difficulty could be referred by rotation or otherwise to one of the Divisional Courts. I would also submit, from the sketch which I have given above of the jurisdiction and duties of the District Registrars that there is no real reason why the District Registrar—assuming him to be a thoroughly competent person, should be attached to or under the control of the Court, and that except for the necessity of forwarding to the Principal Registry, a notice of every application for a grant which he may receive, and awaiting the certificate of the Registrar of the Principal Registry, before issuing the grant, there is no reason why there should be any connection whatever (unless for the purpose of maintaining a uniformity of practice), between the District and Principal Registries.

OBSERVATIONS of the late Lord Chancellor of Ireland.

I HAVE read and considered Judge Warren's observations on the proposed changes to be effected in the Probate Court by the Judicature Bill now before the House of Commons.

I am clearly of opinion that the proposal to transfer the Probate Jurisdiction on the first vacancy to the Queen's Bench Division is entirely right. I do not at all share in the apprehensions of the Judge as to the ineffective way its business may be done after such transfer. I am satisfied that the rights of the public and the suitors will, after such transfer, be guarded and maintained in the fullest manner. If any force might be supposed to attach to what the Judge urges, that when the Queen's Bench Division embraces 9 or 10 Judges, each would have so little to do in routine Probate business that he would not be likely to have experience or knowledge enough to properly discharge it, the whole objection would be met by giving the Lord Chancellor power to assign one particular Judge thereto, as in Bankruptcy, allowing the trial of contested wills to go with the ordinary nisi prius sittings; but, I must confess, I would have no misgivings of the Common Law Judges not being equal to master the practice of the Probate Court. I am satisfied they may be safely trusted therewith; at every turn of their daily business they discharge fully as important duties duties to the law. As to a separate Court there really is not in this country sufficient business to warrant its maintenance; and its transfer to the Common Law Division will, I think, be a great improvement in a right direction.

With respect to District Registrars there is a good deal to be said in favour of maintaining a separate set of special officers for the business they have to do. I gave this matter a good deal of consideration last year when the question was brought before me by the Treasury; I was then of opinion, as I am now, that it is a better arrangement to constitute the Clerks of the Crown and Peace the persons to perform the duties now discharged by the District Registrars. The Clerks of the Crown and Peace are, as a rule, highly intelligent officers; they will become more so every day. There is no mystery in a District Probate or the business connected therewith, and I think it is of much importance that there should be in each county a central office where business of this kind should be done, and so done as part of the ordinary duties of the Clerk of the Crown. If this was followed out, in time the salaries of District Registrars would disappear altogether. The proper supervision of the County Probate business in the offices of the Clerks of the Crown and Peace would, of course, be the subject of rules to be made when the transfer would first take place, and it may be assumed that those rules will insure a careful and accurate performance of the work proper to be done. I do not enter on the question of compensation of the Clerks to the existing Registrars; that is for the Treasury.
